Extortionist Demands $2 Million Bomb Rips TWA Jetliner

NEW YORK (UPI)—An explosion heavily damaged a parked Trans World Airlines jetliner early today at Las Vegas less than 24 hours after a live plastic bomb aboard a TWA jet had been sniffed out by a trained dog at Kennedy International Airport in New York.

No one was injured in the blast aboard the plane at McCarran Airport in Las Vegas. The explosion almost totally destroyed the cockpit of the aircraft, blowing the top and sides out and shredding the bottom.

A TWA spokesman in New York had stated earlier that no bombs were found aboard any of its 250 planes.

A sheriff's department sergeant would say only when asked about the search of the plane at McCarran airport "We didn't know anything was aboard."

TWA refused to disclose if it had been negotiating with an unknown extortionist over the $2 million he demanded to reveal where four bombs allegedly had been placed aboard TWA planes and timed to explode six hours apart.

The Las Vegas plane was positioned in a parking ramp area only yards from the terminal, but apparently no one was near it at the time of the explosion. The terminal appeared undamaged.

Authorities immediately sealed off the airport terminal and the roadways leading to it after the blast, permitting no one to enter or leave for about an hour.

The live plastic bomb was discovered by a German Shepherd dog named Brandy the cockpit of the TWA Boeing 707 at Kennedy International Airport. A bomb squad detective defused the device at 12:48 p.m. EST Tuesday, 12 minutes before it was set to detonate.

The plane, flight 7 en route from Kennedy to Los Angeles, had been in the air 15 minutes with 45 passengers aboard when it was ordered to return to the airport about 11:45 a.m.

At least half a dozen other TWA planes were returned to their ports of origin or diverted to intermediate points to search for bombs. Passengers baggage also was checked.

TWA officials were alerted to the extortion plot by an anonymous telephone call directing them to a storage locker at the TWA terminal at Kennedy.

The locker contained two army type duffel bags and a note to TWA board chairman Charles Tillinghast demanding that each bag be filled with $1 million. Otherwise, the note said, four bombs on different TWA planes would be detonated at six-hour intervals.

Meanwhile, an Eastern Air Lines plane, scheduled to fly from New York to Miami, was held at Kennedy Airport today and searched after a bomb threat.

A spokesman for Eastern Air Lines said its flight 9, had been due to leave Kennedy at 9 a.m. Its 54 passengers were taken off the plane.

The Eastern spokesman said that about 9:25 a.m., an anonymous caller telephoned the airline's reservation office in Woodbridge, N.J., and said there was a bomb aboard the plane, a Boeing 727.

McGovern: A Surprise Showing

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) By 7 a.m. EST, with 38 per cent of the delegate vote count—Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, the winner of New Hampshire's lead-off Democratic primary, fought today for control of the state's delegation cast 18 convention votes.

The increasing chance of a split return in the contest for delegates further clouded the showing of Muskie as he headed for a tough contest in Florida next week without the overwhelming New England sendoff that would have strengthened his bid for the White House.

Muskie, battling McGovern and three other significant challengers, fell short of the absolute majority in preference voting that his managers had set privately as a New Hampshire goal.

The result thus encouraged McGovern and the rest of the large field of Democratic presidential contenders who will face Muskie next Tuesday in Florida's 11-way primary contest.

In the Republican race, President Nixon polled about 70 per cent of the vote in a sweeping victory over two GOP opponents of his bid for a second term.

Nixon loyalists won all 14 delegate races.

Democratic returns covering 94 per cent of the anticipated vote gave Muskie 48 per cent to 37 per cent for McGovern with the rest scattered among a long list of on the ballot and write-in candidates.

Muskie had contended before the balloting that his chief New Hampshire opponent was a phantom rival in the form of an unwritten percentage—to be determined after the votes were in—which he needed to score regardless of whether he won the primary.

McGovern, Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington and a spokesman for Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, the latter two among Muskie's Florida rivals who shied away from a New Hampshire contest, immediately cited the Maine senator's apparent failure to reach 50 per cent as a sign of weakness by the front-running contender.

McGovern told cheering supporters here that his feat in easily surpassing the 25 per cent goal he had set "gives us a leg up on everyone else."

"How we did here, on what was thought to be Muskie turf, is going to give us a big boost in the rest of the country," said McGovern, who has long contended a strong showing in the primaries would enable him to overcome the low ratings in public opinion polls that have hampered his 14-month-old candidacy.

McCardle Attacks Bell On Redistricting Proposal

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON Labeling the proposed congressional redistricting "a disgraceful dissection of Ulster County," Democratic County Chairman James T. McCardle attacked Assemblyman H. Clark Bell for playing "the hero's role" and for making "political expedient noise."

In a press release issued today, McCardle said that Bell's announcement that he will sign the Joint Legislative Redistricting Committee's report is nothing more than an attempt to "cover up his role in the redrawing of legislative lines."

McCardle also charges that Bell's claim that the redistricting was the work of the incumbent congressmen, "is just one more facet of a cleverly devised smoke screen."

McCardle also took Bell to task for claiming to be opposed to the redistricting. He was a member of the Joint Legislative Redistricting Committee which was responsible for redrawing of lines, he said pointing out that "the new lines have left Bell politically intact on safe local ground designed to insure his reelection."

Trenchant reaction to the redistricting plans is also being expressed by other local political leaders including Republican County Chairman Albert Spada who said he is "upset" over the prospects of the county having three congressmen.

Spada said he has nothing against the congressmen involved but he feels it is "unjust for the county to be split three ways."

Spada said he has asked State Sen. Jay P. Rolison, Assemblyman Edwin Mason and Assemblyman Benjamin Gilman, Assemblyman Edwyn Mason and Assemblyman Richard Schermhorn to help defeat the measure. Bell has already indicated he will fight it on the floor of the Legislature. The various Spada contacted are all candidates for the GOP nomination to represent Ulster County in 1973.

Former City Republican Chairman John Ray Mayone called the situation "an outright mess and a disgrace." He said, "It can only tend to deprive Ulster County citizens of proper representation."

"I think all involved should hang their heads in shame," he concluded.

Four Saugerties Legislators are sufficiently concerned to have filed a resolution to come before the Ulster County Legislature Thursday night requesting the state to preserve the boundaries of Ulster County in all its reapportionment plans.

"The problem may be a little bit bigger than most people realize . . . We may be stuck with the proposed plan for more than 10 years," according to Charles Scala (R-Dist. 1) who explained that only once before in 1847 was Ulster County's assembly district enlarged to three districts "and that changed lasted 70 years!" he said. Even the City of Kingston was split up at one time in that period and reapportioning occurred often.

Co-sponsoring the resolution are Richard Thornton (R-Dist. 1) Clifford Snyder (R-Dist. 1) and C. Freeman Lasher (R-Dist. 1).

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators investigating why the Justice Department dropped its biggest antitrust suit still are awaiting first-hand testimony from three key figures.

Two of the three—former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and newspaper columnist Jack Anderson were scheduled to be heard today. The third, Dita D. Beard, lobbyist for the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp., is hospitalized in Denver.

Mitchell and Anderson were scheduled on the witness stand today, following Acting Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst, former Justice antitrust chief Richard McLaren and Felix Rohatyn, an ITT director.

Kleindienst's nomination to be attorney general may hang in the balance of the committee hearings.

It remained uncertain whether the committee will be able to question Mrs. Beard, described in testimony Tuesday as an embarrassing guest at a Kentucky Derby dinner party.

Relying in part on a memo written by Mrs. Beard, Anderson has accused the Justice Department of dropping legal action against ITT after the company pledged $400,000 to help defray expenses of the Republican National Convention.

Ex Gov. Louie B. Nunn of Kentucky told the committee Tuesday that Mrs. Beard angered Mitchell by repeatedly raising the ITT issue in conversation at a Derby Day dinner party at the governor's mansion last May.

"The attorney general replied that he had disqualified himself from the case and that that was not the proper time or place to discuss it," said Nunn, a Republican who left office last January.

Mrs. Beard pursued the topic, Nunn said, and "the attorney general said he was sick and tired of hearing about it."

Nunn said he talked to Mrs. Beard the next day and she "was very concerned that her conduct with the attorney general might cost her her job. She told me she was very concerned about losing her job."

Nunn said he had no discussions with Mitchell about

ITT or the financing of the GOP convention.

He said Mrs. Beard discussed the Anderson story with him once shortly before it was published.

"Mrs. Beard called me and said my name is being used in a column with the memorandum," he testified. "She said she hoped she didn't embarrass me. I said it sounded like she was doing a little name-dropping. She said say what you want and hung up. I got the impression she was apologizing."

Nunn's version of the encounter disagreed with Anderson's report which suggested that Mitchell was sympathetic to her appeal although critical of her high-pressure tactics.

In earlier testimony Tuesday, Kleindienst released a letter from an ITT attorney who wrote that pursuing legal action against the conglomerate could have damaged it financially.

In the letter and an accompanying memo, Lawrence E. Walsh, an outside consultant to ITT, said the Supreme Court probably would have ordered the conglomerate dismembered.

Kleindienst cited that evidence as the principal reason the suit against ITT was dropped.

Patrolman Mayer Found Guilty, Fired by Ellenville Board

By WADE BURKHART

ELLENVILLE Ellenville patrolman Carl B. Mayer has been fired "effective immediately" from the Ellenville Police Department after being found guilty of having sexual intercourse with a girl under 18 years of age.

The Weinsoffs guaranteed to appeal any unfavorable decision arising from the hearing when they were interviewed at its conclusion. Irving Weinsoff said before they appeal they were going to "write to Premier Kosygin in Russia to see how they handle these Star Chamber proceedings."

During the testimony conducted at the hearing after Weinsoffs' exit, a 16-year-old girl testified she had sexual relations with Mayer Jan. 18, and the date was corroborated by the girl's aunt.

Three State Police Investigators testified that Mayer admitted having sexual relations with the girl. Police Chief William C. Trappell testified that Mayer had been insubordinate, and had failed to turn in his evidence of marijuana possession by a fellow officer.

The possible penalties for the charges against Mayer for each charge were dismissal from the force, demotion in grade and title, suspension without pay for a period not exceeding two months, a fine not exceeding $100, or a reprimand.

Mayer was arrested Feb. 7 by the State Police and charged with third degree rape but the charge was subsequently thrown out of court for lack of proof.

The departmental hearing of suspended Ellenville patrolman Anthony Yerkes is scheduled for tonight. Yerkes faces departmental charges of falsely accusing a superior officer, of sexual misconduct while on duty, having unlawfully used an Ellenville Village police car for personal purposes, having "while duly married" sexual relations with a woman not his wife, and as a result fathering a child and having paternity proceedings filed against him, and having sexual relations on "numerous occasions" with the girl.

SS Offices Evacuated

KINGSTON The Selective Service offices on Albany Avenue were evacuated shortly after 10 a. m. today after city police received a report that a bomb was in the building.

According to Police Chief Julius M. Glassman, an anonymous telephone caller called from Albany to the General Service Administration, State Acquisition Office in New York City this morning and said that the Kingston Selective Service Office had been blown up. Officials from the New York City office contacted their colleagues in Albany who contacted city police at 10:02 a. m. No bomb was found.

Woodstock Town Board Defeats Measure

Snowmobile Law Is Buried in Ballot Avalanche

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

WOODSTOCK Snowed under by a unanimous 5-0 vote of Woodstock's Town Board last night was a law that would have allowed regulated use of snowmobiles on designated town roads. While all members of the board voted to defeat the ordinance, Councilman John Gardner did so "with reservations," and Town Justice Rudolf Baumgartner did so in absentia.

In explaining the decision, Supervisor Vern May said, "Our first and major consideration had to be the feeling and rights of the people living on the roads in question (Mink Hollow and Silver Hollow Roads). After a thorough review and validation of all the data in the form of letters and petitions (more than 600 residents signed petitions opposing the move), it was obvious that we had only one way to go." May said the board's findings showed taxpayers along the roads in question were fairly equally divided with a small majority in favor of the ordinance. He gave these figures: On Mink Hollow Road 58 per cent were in favor of snowmobiles and 42 per cent were against, from a total of 24 property owners. On Silver Hollow, 55 per cent were in favor and 45 per cent against, from a total of 20 property owners.

And, while the board was very conscious of the majority rule that usually prevails, noted May, members felt in this instance that the rights and feelings of a large percentage of property owners who did not favor the ordinance had to be considered. May also said that safety had been the board's second major consideration. The two roads involved, he said, "are both very narrow and certainly present a hazard, if traveled by snowmobiles and automobile traffic simultaneously."

The defeat of what would have been known as Snowmobile Local Law No. 1 has definitely not written into the snowmobile issue in Woodstock, says

May. The controversy is not a closed topic as far as the board is concerned, since members recognize the winter sports machine to be a form of recreation that many Woodstockers enjoy. The board plans to seek "some type of program" for them in the future. "We are already trying to get clarification from the state on the question of easement rights and snowmobile trails," says May.

The board will also look for suggestions from the local Beverkill Snowmobile Club and its 250 members, who originally petitioned the town fathers to pass the law allowing access roads to woodland trails to be opened to snowmobiles. Club members will be asked how the town can help with a snowmobile recreation program in the winters ahead.

"We realize that this must be done," says the supervisor. "We just do not feel that the ordinance and use of town roads was the direction we should take."

McCardle Reversal Cited

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON Opinion is still split in the Democratic Party following Chairman James McCardle's decision to seat three city committee members on his Executive Committee after previously rejecting them.

McCardle met with the town chairmen and city Chairman Lawrence Woerner late last week at an uptown restaurant and agreed to sit Alderman-at-Large T. Robert Gallo, Mrs. Kathleen Quick, and Mrs. Florence Klein on his Executive Committee. Mrs. Quick is the wife of Alderman Donald E. Quick (D-Sixth Ward), chairman of the Common Council's Laws and Rules Committee, and Mrs. Klein is the wife of City Corporation Counsel Aaron E. Klein. Both women have been active for many years in the Democratic Party.

The dispute goes back to Nov. 23 when McCardle sent a letter to Woerner asking him (Woerner) for the names of eight city committee members to be either elected or appointed by Woerner to the County Executive Committee. Eight persons were elected including Gallo, Mrs. Quick and Mrs. Klein.

McCardle rejected those three persons, stating that Gallo and Mrs. Quick did not want to work with him, in his opinion, and that Mrs. Klein's husband, Aaron, had been active in the race for state committeeman between Maurice Hinchey and Thomas Lyle, a race won by Hinchey. Klein worked on behalf of Lyle in that contest. Chairman Woerner reacted to that by convening the city committee which voted to divorce itself from affairs of the County Executive Committee until McCardle seated Gallo, Mrs. Quick and Mrs. Klein. The resolution also called for meetings between town and city officials on McCardle's actions. According to reports, the city found what has been described as "substantial support" out in the county which further weakened McCardle's position. McCardle has been unavailable for comment throughout the entire controversy. Woerner has acknowledged that McCardle had seated Gallo, Mrs. Klein and Mrs. Quick but said that he was not at liberty to offer any further comments on the situation.

Commissioners Fail to Act On Vacated Chief's Post

KINGSTON The Board of fire commissioners met in regular session Tuesday night but took no action on the position of chief of the department, vacated last month by the retirement of James M. Brett.

The commissioners agreed to continue the arrangement whereby the two deputy chiefs, Hugh Greer and Robert Maines, are in charge of the department during their respective tours of duty.

The commissioners also failed to take action on the appointment of Capt. Philip Greer Sr. to the position of deputy chief. Capt. Greer scored 87.8

per cent on the Civil Service test for deputy chief in November of last year. Action on the appointment was tabled. The department has a normal complement of four deputy chiefs. There are two vacancies.

One bid was received for $150 on the department's 1959 GMC truck which had been used as the fire alarm truck. Colonial Roofing's bid is being reviewed. The truck was surplus. It comes equipped with a 28-foot ladder mounted on top.

Bids were also opened for a new heating system for the J. N. Cordis Firehouse at 211 Delaware Avenue. Five bids were received ranging from a low of about $900 to a high of $2,700. Details on the bidding were incomplete. Commissioners Donald Matthews and Fred Reis were named as a committee of two to study the bids and report back to the board at its April meeting.

Julian Bond Scheduled to Give Talk at UCCC

STONE RIDGE, the first Negro nominated for the Vice Presidency at the 1968 Democratic National Convention, will speak on "Collision Course in a Divided America" at the Stone Ridge campus of Ulster County Community College on Monday, March 20.

JULIAN BOND

The talk, sponsored by the Student Government Organization at the College, will be held at 8 p.m. in the John C. Quimby Auditorium in Vanderlyn Hall. There is no admission charge, and it is open to the public.

A leader of the New Democratic Coalition, Bond is a militant activist, but not a revolutionary. He represents Negroes seeking to influence the nation through the existing system.

The 32-year-old Bond helped to found the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) in 1960, and that summer joined the staff of the newly-formed Atlanta weekly Negro newspaper, the "Atlanta Inquirer," as a reporter and feature writer. He later became managing editor.

In January, 1961, Bond left Morehouse College in Atlanta to join the staff of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee as communications director, a position he held until September, 1966.

While with SNCC, Bond directed the organization's photography, printing and publicity departments. His work with SNCC took him to civil rights drives and voter registration campaigns in Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and Arkansas.

He first was elected to a seat created by reapportionment in the Georgia House of Representatives in 1965, but was prevented from taking office the following January by Legislature members who objected to his statements about the war in Vietnam. He won a second election in November, 1966, and in December, 1966, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that his vacant seat, a special House Committee again voted unanimously that the Georgia House had erred in refusing him his seat. On Jan. 9, 1967, he took the oath of office and became a member of the Georgia House of Representatives.

Bond was the first co-chairman of the National Conference for New Politics and now serves as a member of the NCNP Executive Board.

His poems and articles have appeared in "Negro Digest," "Motive," "Ramparts," "American Negro Poetry," "The Book of Negro Poetry" and other publications.

Story of President's Death Recounted in Historic Newspaper

"EXTRA—8:10 a.m.—DEATH OF THE PRESIDENT—The Official Dispatches.

Major General Dix, New York:

Abraham Lincoln died this morning at twenty-two minutes past 7 o'clock. Edwin M. Stanton, Secretary of War."

These lines begin to tell the story of the tragic killing of Abraham Lincoln from the April 15, 1865 edition of the New York Herald.

This original copy, yellowed and tattered with age, was recently re-discovered by Josephine Cole, 87, of Tivoli. Her mother, also a Tivoli resident since birth, had taken the care to preserve the historic copy which tells the tale of one of America's greatest tragedies.

On that date, the Civil War was not yet over. Jefferson Davis was still exhorting his Confederate followers to win the conflict. Another headline, slanted from the Northern point of view, says: "His Latest Appeal to His Deluded Followers—He Thinks the Fall of Richmond a Blessing in Disguise...He Vainly Promises to Hold Virginia at all Hazards—Lee and His Army Supposed to be Safe..."

In the journalistic language of the day, some of the tale was told thusly: "Washington was thrown into an intense excitement a few minutes before eleven o'clock this evening by the announcement that the President and Secretary Seward had been assassinated and were dead."

The wildest excitement prevailed in all parts of the city. Men, women, and children, old and young, rushed to and fro, and the rumors were magnified until we had nearly every member of the Cabinet killed...."

"The President and Mrs. Lincoln were at Ford's Theatre listening to the performance of the American Cousin, occupying a box in the second tier. At the close of the third act a person entered the box occupied by the President and shot Mr. Lincoln in the head. The shot entered the back of his head and came out above the temple."

Seward was attacked at his home. The account states: "He (the assassin) was met at the door by Mr. Fred Seward, who notified him that he was the master of the house and would take charge of the medicine. After a few words had passed between them he dodged by Fred Seward and rushed to the Secretary's bed and struck him in the neck with a dagger, and also in the breast."

Seward's attacker fled the house and mounted a horse, shouting, "Sic Semper Tyrannis" and rode off. These were the same words shouted by John Wilkes Booth, Lincoln's assassin, and were the motto of the State of Virginia, meaning "Thus ever to tyrants."

The screams of Mrs. Lincoln first disclosed the fact to the audience that the President had been shot, when all present "rose to their feet rushing towards the stage (from whence Booth fled) many exclaiming 'Hang him Hang him!'"

In recounting the events leading to the President's attendance, the Herald noted: "Mrs. Lincoln had not been well, but because the papers had announced that General Grant and they were to be present, and as General Grant had gone North, he did not wish the audience to be disappointed."

Some reports of crowd reactions said: "The entire city tonight presents a scene of wild excitement, accompanied by violent expression of indignation and the profoundest sorrow: many shed tears."

"The military authorities have dispatched mounted patrols in every direction in order...to arrest the assassins..."

It was believed then, and later confirmed, that the two assassins had been working as part of a plot. "It appears from papers found in Booth's trunk that the murder was planned before the fifth of March, but fell through then because the accomplice backed out until Richmond could be heard from."

The six-column front page of the Herald was bordered heavily in black.

And an ironic twist of fate found this line in that morning's edition of the Herald, which could have been used for another presidential assassination nearly 100 years later:

"Vice President Johnson arrived...where the President lies...and will remain with him to the last."

ASSEMBLYMAN EDWIN E. MASON

Assemblyman Mason ...Easy Man to Know

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON
Assemblyman Edwin E. Mason is easy to know. And, this fact will probably make it easier for him when he makes his run for the GOP nomination for the State Senate in Northern Ulster County and counties to the north which comprise the new senatorial district.

Not that the Hobart lawyer and former three-county chairman of the James L. Buckley for U.S. Senate Committee isn't already extremely well known throughout the state, especially for espousing fiscal conservatism in the face of Gov. Rockefeller's demands for new taxes.

That posture recently cost Mason his $5,000 a year State Legislative Agriculture Committee chairmanship.

Visiting in Ulster County on several occasions recently where he is no stranger to such persons as former Sen. Arthur H. Wicks, Postmaster Oscar V. Newkirk and the late Kingston Mayor Frederick H. Stang, Mason recalled that he is perhaps best known for serving as a "responsible conscience" for the Assembly. A former crewman on the Hudson River Dayline's, "Robert Fulton", he was also a friend and champion of the late Col. George F. Chandler, founder of the New York State Police.

The new district in which he seeks the GOP nomination includes: Delaware, Schoharie, Sullivan, Otsego and part of Herkimer County as well as these towns in northern Ulster County—Woodstock, Hurley, Ulster, Saugerties, Gardiner, Olive, Shandaken, Marletown.

A raiser and breeder of horses on his Hobart farm in Delaware County Mason has won many plaudits for the New York State law he sponsored and which has been hailed by naturalists throughout the world for prohibiting traffic in skins or other products of 14 species of animals threatened with extinction. During the past week, Mason was honored by the Albany Audubon Society for his sponsoring of the act which has served as a model for similar laws in California, Illinois and Massachusetts.

In 1970, in recognition for his work in this field, he was named "Conservation Legislator of the Year."

A friend of "Joe Average" Mason has the ability to get his message across with simple phrasing and he speaks candidly on any and all issues tossed his way, seldom if ever varying from his "normal" "conservative leanings."

It was perhaps the more liberal Rockefeller's attempts to discipline the veteran legislator that has made Mason even stronger with rural voters.

Seated at his old fashioned, high topped desk in the old Capitol Building in Albany (he doesn't approve of the new Mall offices), Mason tells any and all that a lot of "ordinary common sense" is needed to meet today's fiscal problems.

Too many intellectuals (particularly in education) are soaring off into the rarified atmosphere, he suggests, adding that he is opposed to many of the governor's spending programs "when we are practically on the verge of bankruptcy."

Of the Taylor Law (it was his vote favoring it that meant passage of the law), Mason now suggests that "it has fostered ill feelings. Many teachers, he said, tell him that they find they are in a constant atmosphere of tension and turmoil because of it and that it is consequently unpleasant to work under those conditions."

Once employed on ocean going Great Lakes ships, Mason told of a good deal of legislation in the state favoring organized labor but he feels there is disproportionate pressure from labor in New York City.

Taxing people to pay for non-essentials is another bone of contention with him and he cites the State Council on Arts as an example. Recalling that the program first began with a budget of $50,000 Mason said it has now reached $16 million annually. "When you're broke, you don't go out and buy mink coats," he commented.

Suggesting that the program be discontinued for now, Mason points to the "many people having a desperate time paying taxes... They come to me with hair raising stories... older people especially have no reserve to pay their taxes."

Calling New York State the mecca for welfare seekers, he charges that only "feeble" attempts have been made to control the problem and deplores a state of affairs in which welfare workers have been and are being subjected to assaults by irate applicants.

"There has been a tremendous erosion of local authority," he suggests, adding that "it is a tragedy to have the power to do good and not do it."

Former president of the New York State Legislative Pilot's Association, Mason is also counsel to the New York State Horse Breeders Association. The new district in which he seeks office is comprised of Delaware, part of Sullivan, Schoharie, Otsego and parts of Herkimer County as well as the following towns of Ulster County: Woodstock, Saugerties, Hurley, Gardiner, Shandaken, Olive, Marletown, Wawarsing and the Town of Ulster.

Mason was born in DePuyser St. Lawrence County and attended schools in Ogdensburg and graduated from Oswego State College with a BS degree. He has attended graduate schools at Syracuse University, Texas A & M College and the University of Minnesota.

While attending school and college, he served on ocean going and Great Lakes ships and was employed in the building and construction trades.

Upon graduation from college, he became instructor in shop work and drafting at North Syracuse High School. His graduate work included specialization in industrial education, personal psychology, history and vocational guidance. For several years he directed evening shop classes at the Syracuse Boys' Club.

After serving as instructor in iron work and sheet metal at Elmira Free Academy, Mason entered the U. S. Army and served in the Infantry and Military Police. He subsequently became Veteran's vocational guidance counselor for Elmira Free Academy, Elmira Veterans' School and Chemung County. Gov. Thomas Dewey appointed him a member of the Selective Service Board where he acted as advisor on veteran's reemployment problems.

Entering Albany Law School, he graduated with an LL.B. degree and was later awarded the Juris Doctor Degree by that university. He is engaged in the general practice of law and is a member of the firm of Rushmore, Mason, Marcus and Crocker with offices in Stamford and Delhi.

Mason is married to the former Melva Bettinger of Chittenango. They have two children, Martha Anne and Richard Eric.

State's Welfare System

Assembly Dems Propose Overhaul

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Assembly Democrats proposed an overhaul of New York's welfare system Tuesday to freeze local spending at current levels and use federal money to cover new costs.

Although their "white paper" contained a sweeping denunciation of Republican Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's welfare-reform program enacted last year, the Democrats' plan had an element they have advocated for years—federal takeover of welfare financing—and Rockefeller adopted.

The plan was announced at a news conference called by Assembly Minority Leader Stanley Steingut of Brooklyn.

Assemblyman Samuel Wright, D-Brooklyn, chairman of a Democratic task force on welfare, said the principal thrust of the proposal is to freeze local spending and to take advantage of more federal matching funds.

Assemblyman Peter Berle, D-Manhattan, said part of the proposal involves bills he has introduced to force the state to apply for more federal aid and to forward to the federal government applications by local governments which involve no state spending.

Other parts of the Democrats' plan call for creation of a public-service employment corporation, establishment of "crisis-intervention centers" aimed at heading off problems which could lead to someone going on welfare and providing more day care services so an estimated 135,000 welfare mothers can be freed to hold jobs.

While the Democrats were making their welfare proposal, the chairmen of the legislature's education committees were suggesting that the state provide funds for independent community-run schools, the so-called "free schools."

Sen. Thomas Laverne, R-Irondequoit, said the greatest merit for such schools is that they involve the parents of their students.

In legislative action Tuesday, the Assembly approved three minor bills and spent about half of its floor session discussing a resolution asking Rockefeller to proclaim March 16 "West Point Day."

On hand for the discussion, which later was repeated by the Senate, were the West Point commandant, Lt. Gen. William Knowlton and several members of his staff.

One of the bills which the Assembly approved would require a food processor to declare on the label whether a product contains animal or vegetable shortening.

In the Senate, a bill to grant property tax exemptions to disabled persons—the same as senior citizens now receive—was approved by a 52-0 vote after setting off a brief flurry of discussion.

Minority Leader Joseph Zaretzki of Manhattan said, "No body can oppose the bill," but he said the legislature should make up for revenue lost by local governments.

Zaretzki added, "When we deprive local governments of revenue for worthwhile programs, it's our job to see that local governments don't suffer."

In other action, the Senate: —Approved a bill by a 36-16 vote to raise from $2,500 to $10,000 the value of a project the Office of General Services can handle without advertising for bids.

—Voted 43-9 for a measure to have the Council on Architecture to study the way the state handles construction contracts.

—Approved a measure to require an attendant to be on duty at a self-service coin-operated gasoline station.

Rocky Still Seeking Federal Funds

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—Governor Rockefeller has pledged anew his determination to try to obtain some form of federal revenue sharing to help balance his $7.9 billion budget.

The Republican governor, speaking to the League of Women Voters' annual legislative conference Tuesday, noted published reports that indicated the concept was in trouble in Washington.

Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, the Arkansas Democrat who is chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, has said he is not sure his committee will approve the Mills' bill for federal revenue sharing.

Rockefeller has included $400 million in anticipated federal revenue sharing to balance next year's state budget, basing the additional aid partially on Mills' measure designed to parcel out $5.3 billion to the states.

Later, in an impromptu news conference following his talk to the some 350 league members, Rockefeller told newsmen the federal revenue was "essential."

"I am going to do all I can to help obtain its passage," he said.

During his talk, Rockefeller related his telephone call to an unidentified congressman to seek aid in gaining approval for the measure.

Rockefeller noted what he termed a "diffusion" in responsibility in government, and said that much of it was due to the different levels of government involved in spending programs.

He said money passed from the federal to state to local level often had the effect of creating unanticipated requirements for new spending and enriched programs.

The governor's prepared text dealt with a strong appeal for some form of no-fault auto inurance this year. He told the league that no-fault would go far towards clearing up congestion in the courts—a major target of the league for the past several years.

He called the present liability system "disgraceful" and urged the league to exert its influence on the legislature to help obtain passage of a no-fault provision now before the legislature.

During his brief meeting with newsmen, Rockefeller was asked again about reports he would shortly propose a moratorium on upstate off-track betting. He would not confirm that such a move was in the works but said various plans were under consideration concerning the controversial matter.

The governor was also asked about an announcement from the assembly Ways and Means Committee that they would insert some line items into this year's budget rather than leaving lump sum amounts as submitted by Rockefeller's staff.

He replied that he felt lump sum figures were "very helpful" because they allowed money to be shifted around within the program or department without violating spending provisions. The governor termed the lump sum items valuable for "useful flexibility."

Jackie Continues Her Testimony

NEW YORK (UPI)—Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis described Tuesday how a freelance photographer circled around her in a motorboat while she was swimming, jumped up, down and sideways while she bought stockings and followed her in a cab when she went for a walk.

Nonetheless, she told a federal judge, she was always smiling in Galella's photographs because "I did not want to be photographed frowning." While the former First Lady testified in the nonjury trial, a stack of slides and photographs taken by Galella, 41, was beside her.

It was Mrs. Onassis' second day of testimony in the trial. She wants U.S. District Judge Irving Ben Cooper to issue a permanent injunction ordering Galella to keep at least 200 yards away from her apartment and 100 yards from her because, she says, he interferes with her privacy.

Galella in turn is suing her for $1.3 million, charging her resistance to his photography interferes with his means of making a living and thus denies his constitutional freedom of the press guarantee.

"I couldn't even buy a newspaper without Galella being there," Mrs. Onassis said.

On one occasion, Mrs. Onassis said, she was swimming with her husband off the Italian island of Ischia when Galella appeared in a motorboat. The boat "came right on top of us and kept going around and around and around while Galella was taking pictures," she said.

"I was afraid of the propeller so we got out of the water," she said.

Then, in May, 1970, she said she went to buy stockings at Bonwit Teller in Manhattan. Galella "jumped from I don't know where. He was jumping sideways, up and down, changing directions. He brushed by me. I kept buying stockings but his activities curtailed my shopping."

On March 4, 1971, she said she went to her hairdresser, Kenneth. When she emerged, she said, Galella had drawn a crowd. While he shot pictures, "sometimes he came close enough to bump me," she said.

On Oct. 7, in an effort to avoid Galella, she said she left her Fifth Avenue apartment house by the back door. But before she could get to Central Park, she said, "Galella appeared in a taxi with a girl. They were looking at me and laughing. They were taking pictures through the cab window."

"I started to run. They got out of the cab and chased me. They kept running around me and Mr. Galella kept yelling, 'Get her, get her,'" she said.

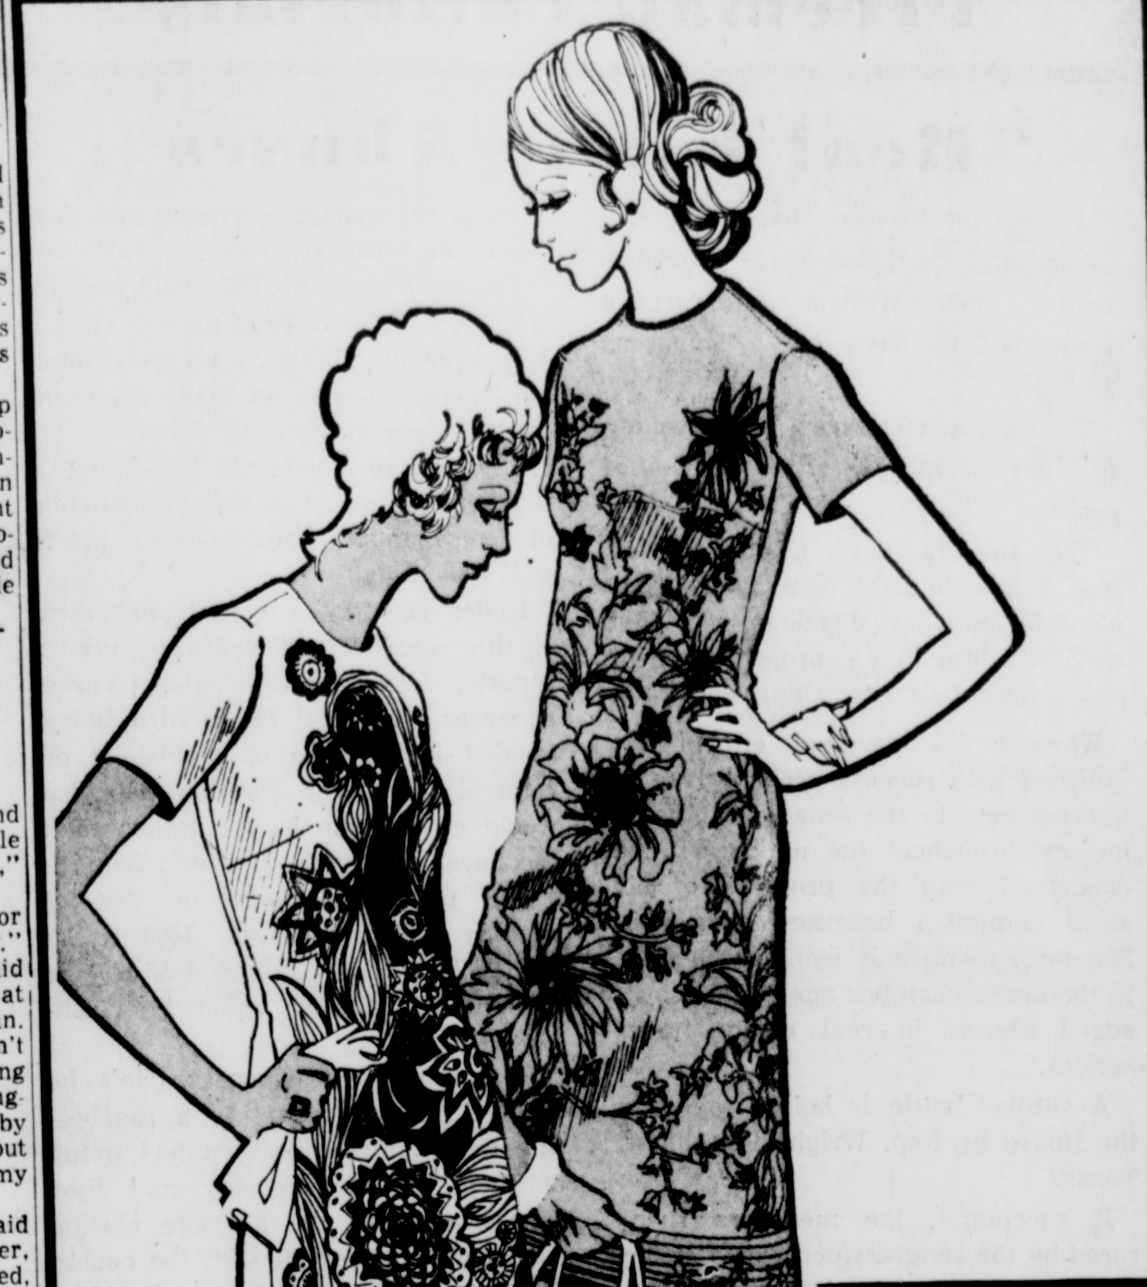

"I was a wreck. I don't remember how I got home."

Spain Ready for Big Social Event

MADRID (UPI)—Spanish police turned out in force today to assure privacy for Spain's biggest social event in two decades—the marriage of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's granddaughter to a member of the Spanish royal family.

Many European bluebloods and celebrities were among the more than 2,000 guests. They ranged from Swedish royalty to Mrs. Henry Ford II, and from Princess Grace of Monaco to bullfighter Manuel "El Cordobes" Benitez, the world's highest-paid athlete.

The 6:00 p.m. (noon EST) wedding was remarkable for more than its glitter and the setting in the 17th Century Pardo Palace, Franco's official residence.

It links the nation's two most prominent families and will make Franco, 79, a relative by marriage of the Spanish kings who preceded him and who, if his plans come true, will succeed him. It adds to the image of stability which his 35-year-old regime has acquired since the Civil War years.

Fashion designer Pedro Balenciaga came out of retirement to create what has been described as a classical-styled, gem-sprinkled white satin dress for the blonde bride, Maria del Carmen Martinez-Bordiu Franco, 21.

Her groom, Prince Alfonso of Bourbon, 36, will wear his gold-embroidered uniform of Spain's ambassador to Sweden. The ceremony will be performed by Cardinal Vicente Enrique Tarazona, archbishop of Madrid.

The wedding was Spain's biggest society event since the bride's mother, Carmen—Franco's only child—married the Marquess de Villaverde in the same palace chapel more than 20 years ago.

A select 300 guests will witness the ceremony inside the small chapel and attend the wedding party with the Bourbons and the Francos in the upstairs rooms of the palace.

The remainder will watch the wedding on closed-circuit television and then attend a stand-up buffet on the ground floor.

It disrupts his operation," Rossides said. "He's got a tax investigation on his back now. He's in trouble. It shuts off his profits."

The Treasury will concentrate its tax probes in the major cities, Rossides said. And another 100 agents will be hired by the end of April, to increase the pressure.

Not all the money is expected to be collected. But a lot of it already has been seized in raids in which traffickers were arrested and left cash behind.

Rossides said there has been one tax conviction since the

Tax Probe for Drug Traffickers

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a continuing effort to squeeze the profits out of the narcotics trade, the Treasury Department plans to increase almost 50 per cent the number of drug traffickers singled out for federal tax investigations.

Asst. Treasury Secretary Eugene T. Rossides said his goal is to have 600 or more drug traffickers under tax investigation by the end of June, compared with 413 at present.

"I'm trying to get this across to organized crime," Rossides said in an interview. "They'd better believe we mean business. They'd better get into another business."

He said the tax program, in

West Point GIs Searching for Boy

By The Associated Press

A busload of regular Army soldiers from West Point have joined more than 300 police, firemen, volunteers, forest rangers and Boy Scouts combing the rugged woods around the tiny Orange County village of Greenwood Lake for seven-year-old Walter Starr Jr.

The boy has been missing since Saturday when he was seen by a schoolmate walking into the woods alone near the base of Bellvale Mountain.

Searchers under the direction of State Police Maj. Raymond Kaiser also began dragging Greenwood Lake for the youngster.

The Army regulars were brought into the search Tuesday after State Police requested assistance in the hunt for the Starr boy.

Kaiser said he was not ruling out the possibility the boy might have met with foul play.

"Leave no stone unturned, look and look again," he told the searchers as they regrouped Tuesday afternoon to continue scouring the rugged underbrush of the New York-New Jersey border town.

Helicopters from the State Police and Environmental Conservation Department were pressed into the search Sunday but failed to turn up a trace of the missing boy. Bloodhounds also proved useless because of more than two inches of fresh snow that fell in the area during the weekend.

Meanwhile, Schenectady

County sheriff's deputies reported no progress in their hunt for Dennis Heigel, 11, of Glenville, missing since Friday night along the banks of Alplaus Creek near his home.

Deputies and volunteer firemen have chopped ice along the creek for two days in an effort to determine if the youngster fell into the water and drowned.

"He was last seen standing up to his waist in water," a deputy said Tuesday. He explained that a companion who went for help saw the Heigel boy slide into the water while walking along the creek edge after falling in an attempt to climb up a steep embankment.

Two State Police skindivers were called in Tuesday to help with the search but decided against entering the water. The creek, eight feet deep in some sections, is covered with two layers of ice separated by about 18 inches of water. The top layer of ice is several inches thick while the second layer is anywhere from a foot to more than two feet thick, the deputy said.

Dennis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Heigel of Tryon Drive, Glenville.

Walter lives with his mother and sister in Greenwood Lake. His father reportedly lives in Florida.

Real Estate Abuses

Except for the fact that the subject is serious, the latest project of Wisconsin's Sen. William J. Proxmire could be the basis for a humorous satire.

To mix a metaphor, he's gunning for the scalps of some influential people.

The fleeting thought occurs that maybe he's thinking of a quick transplant to avoid the 18-month wait that confronts him in his project to grow hair where he's now shiny and bald.

Whether his personal efforts are crowned with success probably are of interest only to the senator but home buyers throughout the nation will be concerned with the progress of his other campaign because once again Senator Proxmire is leading the fight in the upper chamber against acknowledged abuses in real estate transactions.

A similar battle is being waged in the House by Rep. Wright Patman of Texas.

If successful, the measures sponsored by the congressmen would strike directly at a number of common practices in the mortgage-lending and title insurance business.

Senator Proxmire's bill would require the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to set maximum settlement charges on loans financed by the Federal Housing Authority or the VA. Rep. Patman's bill is even tougher. He would include settlements on conventional bank-financed mortgages as well.

Under scrutiny are such expenses as title searches and insurance, credit reports, surveys, appraisals, termite expenses and legal fees. Also being studied is evidence of kickbacks or referral fees. The Patman bill also would compel the lender rather than the buyer to pay the lawyer's fee.

The newspaper found a varying pattern of closing costs, $800 for a $40,000 house in Boston and $2,500 for a home of similar value in Washington.

Obviously some expenses can't be avoided in consummating a real estate deal but congressmen feel many of them are unnecessary—and they sure are. With the average closing cost now estimated at $580, the course of savings could be substantial.

Recovery Road

The problem is this: How can we build a country for all of us—labor, management all of us? This report may clarify the difficulty:

"We used to make I-beam truck axles in our Cleveland plant. As wages and material prices rose, we were priced out of the market," said Charles H. Smith Jr., chairman of Silfco Industries, Inc. "Recently, we learned our former customer was planning to buy axles in Japan or Spain. We decided we would try to get the business for our plant in Brazil."

"Today, we are making those axles there in Brazil for delivery to the U.S. We found we could buy the steel in Japan, ship it 12,000 miles to Brazil, unload and haul it 100 miles inland to our plant, produce the axles, pack them for export, ship them 6,000 miles to the U.S., pay 10 per cent duty, plus ten per cent surcharge since August 15, pay inland freight in the U.S., and deliver them to the customer cheaper than we could make them in Cleveland, five miles from our steel source. Actually, we are now using Brazilian steel because the mills there met the Japanese price."

What are the results? The price of truck axles is lower so more trucks probably can be sold and put to work. But another result is that a lot of American jobs are now being done in other countries. The problem of producing truck axles, unfortunately, is not unique. Witness these statistics:

In 1950, we produced 47 per cent of the world's raw steel, last year 20 per cent; in 1950, we produced 76 per cent of the cars in the world, last year 33 per cent; for generations, we ranked first in the world in producing machine tools, last year we ranked fourth.

High wages and the high price of materials are not unmixed blessings. Often they serve to shut down our factories and put an end to pay checks. Together with taxes that bleed manufacturers, U.S. products can no longer compete in domestic or world markets.

WASHINGTON — Hubert Humphrey is secretly worried about the Democratic Party's attitudes toward foreign policy and national security.

He acknowledges that his own thinking is "too hard" but believes most of his party rivals are "mushy."

His views are outlined in a startlingly frank memo that was never intended to be read outside his office.

On the security issue, he informed his campaign associates: "I'm worried about the Democratic Party and its spokesmen. (Senator Henry) Jackson takes a hard line — and I think too hard. 'The rest of them take a line that is more like drawing a stick through a muddy ditch, the line disappears — it simply is mushy — it has no context and is a retreat from reality. . . . 'I have been an advocate of arms control, but I am not an advocate of weakness. Nevertheless, I'm afraid that the votes that I'm compelled to make in the Senate, because the choices are very poor, make me appear to be weak on security.

"I cannot on the one hand be an exponent of the industrial-military complex, and I am not and will not be. But I do not want to be a proponent of weakness and unilateral disarmament. 'Therefore, I've simply got to find someone or several people that can help me in designing the broad outlines of a new American foreign policy, backed up with adequate military strength that will give us a program of national security and permit us to engage in international negotiations without fear or frustration . . .'

Ma Bell's Hanky Panky

A $350 million hike in New York's telephone bills has led to charges of hanky panky between the Federal Price Commission and the Bell System.

The case began last summer when New York's phones were so fouled up that we found our calls to London, Vietnam and Nairobi got through faster than those to Manhattan.

To improve the service, the state public service commission gave American Telephone and Telegraph, known fondly as "Mother Bell," a temporary $190 million rate increase.

The phone company quickly acted to make the temporary increase permanent and to hit up New York's telephone users for another $160 million, for a total increase of $350 million.

The state commission approved the increase on January 17, exactly the same day the federal commission put into effect new stringent rules on utility rate increases. Clearly, the increase should have come under the new tough rules.

But two days later, Ma Bell's tanned, talented troubleshooter, Hervey Froehlich, brought a document-laden team of telephone officials into a secret meeting with the Price Commission's utilities chief, Edgar Skinner.

As Froehlich later told us, his aim was "to explain the urgent need for higher rates" in New York. But no telephone users, who will have to pay the higher bills, were invited to the meeting.

It took the Price Commission only two days to go through the mountain of documents and rule that Mother Bell's increase came under the lax pre-January 17 rules. Then Skinner, without telling the public, called the persuasive Froehlich to give him the glad tidings.

Now the two men are in hot dispute over how far Skinner told the Bell System it could go. Froehlich swears to us that Skinner said the rates could go into effect as soon as the state commission okayed the detailed tariff sheets.

But Skinner told us: "I don't know where he got that. That's quite a bit off!"

In any event, Skinner's concern came too late. The telephone company disregarded the required ten-day waiting period and jacked the rates in New York without even filing the tariff sheets.

This brought such howls from New York congressmen and consumers that the Price Commission is now moving hesitantly toward rolling back $160 million of the increase.

But the New York congressional delegation, as Rep. Ogden Reid, R-N.Y., has put it in a private letter, remains "shocked and outraged."

He has asked Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., to air the case before his Joint Economics Committee.

"The responsible officials on the Price Commission are guilty, at the very least, of gross impropriety," Reid wrote to Proxmire.

The New York congressman, citing Froehlich's alleged "urgent need" for a rate hike, commented caustically: "The general public (was) not afforded a similar opportunity to explain their urgent need for price restraint."

Footnote: We spoke at length with both Froehlich and Skinner who denied any impropriety. But Skinner, commenting on the absence of Public-interest observers at the secret meeting, said: "My staff and I might have been amiss."

Election Topics

WASHINGTON — Although there has been a good deal of campaigning already in the primaries by various candidates — mostly Democratic aspirants for the Presidency — there is no clear idea yet as to what the issues of the 1972 election contest are going to be. Certainly it looks like the Vietnam war will have ceased to be of political importance because most of the American troops will have been withdrawn by next November, and the emphasis will be on other issues.

The attention given lately to foreign policy — President Nixon's trip to mainland China, to be followed by his visit in May to the Soviet Union — tends to overshadow the debates that normally arise on questions of a domestic nature. But there are plenty of disputes which the Republicans as well as the Democrats will have a lot to say.

Economic affairs are believed to be improving, and six months from now there may be a more marked advance toward recovery. Unemployment is still high, however, and those without jobs are among the discontented. Controversies, of course, have arisen over the impact of strikes. There have been rival claims by the Democrats and Republicans concerning higher social security benefits, and quite a debate has been going on for several weeks about putting restrictions on forced school-busing if parents wish them applied. These are among the most widely discussed subjects.

Another topic about which much is heard is the suggestion that amnesty be given to "draft dodgers" and deserters, many of whom have gone to Canada and other countries. Some of them are arguing that they ought to be forgiven and that all their rights should be restored.

One of the big campaign issues will be the cost of living. Has inflation been curbed sufficiently to hold down the prices of goods purchased for day-to-day living? In many sections of the country rising costs, despite the restraints on wages and prices, have been causing protests.

There hasn't been much debate thus far about the failure of Congress to enact laws that the President has requested, but it may be that in the autumn months Mr. Nixon will make a campaign pointing out the lack of legislative action to give the nation some of the reforms he has proposed. He probably will renew his plea for a Republican majority in both houses.

While Mr. Nixon has won substantial backing because of his foreign policy and may get more after he has gone to Moscow, there are many people who will vote on the basis of domestic issues. So the Republicans doubtless are preparing their campaign for the presidency with an outline of what Mr. Nixon has asked for and failed to get and what he hopes to get if a Republican Congress is chosen next time.

It certainly would be an unusual thing if domestic issues do not come up most often in the campaign. But at the moment extraordinary emphasis is being given to events in international affairs. The President has been in the public eye because of his visit to Peking, and this will happen again when he goes to Moscow.

Meanwhile, the Republican organization is building up for a very difficult fight, which will begin in earnest after its convention has been held in San Diego in August. Although Mr. Nixon will have overwhelming support at the convention, this does not mean that he will be able to win re-election without a vigorous campaign on National issues during the three months prior to election day.

The Republicans rarely have much trouble gathering money for campaigns, and they will need plenty this time for television and other forms of communication to publicize their position on the problems of the day. John N. Mitchell, who resigned recently as Attorney General, has taken over the management of the campaign, and he is familiar with this kind of task. The feeling is that there will be a hard battle ahead, and maybe a close one if Governor George Wallace of Alabama runs on a third-party ticket.

Charity Should Begin at Home

Now that quiet has returned, I raise a lone and timid voice to suggest that President Richard Nixon was right in presenting, over a period of years, Taiwan to China. Hopefully, it may be the beginning of the end of the old political philosophy called "spheres of influence."

As the U.S. retreats from Vietnam, a sure loser in a long and costly war, we study our burned hands. In the last 55 years we have made outright gifts, or loans, or Lend-Lease to the total of 300 billions of dollars, and I speak only of what will not be repaid. If we had our own money back, we would be practically out of debt to ourselves.

It is 27 years since Prime Minister Winston Churchill, ruddy with anger, shouted: "I did not become His Majesty's First Minister to sit at the dissolution of the British Empire." He is gone, and the empire is gone.

Franklin D. Roosevelt was criticized for giving Poland away to the Russians in Feb. 1945 at Yalta. They said he did it to get Soviet acquiescence to his notion of a United Nations. What no one mentioned was that three Russian Army groups were then on Polish soil and no one was powerful enough to evict them.

In 1898, we fought a war with Spain. One of the goals was to grant freedom to helpless Cuba and what, I ask, is our helpless friend's attitude toward the United States today? Is Premier Fidel Castro our ally?

The situation today is one that Europe refers to as "realpolitik." Briefly stated, it considers each problem of foreign policy in the light of what is possible, and turns its back to the rest of it. For example, it is possible to assist little Israel with the U.S. Sixth Fleet. If the Russians, who are much closer geographically, move in with massive armies, we and Israel will lose.

In 1949, when Chiang Kai-shek refused to share power in China with the Communists, he lost the last battle and fled to Taiwan. There he begged loan after loan from the United States and promised that he would raise a mighty Nationalist army that would invade Mainland China and restore a government which, in his myopia, was called a democracy.

He has not done it. He will not do it. He cannot do it. The only item which has kept Mainland China from gobbling up Taiwan and the small offshore islands is a U.S. fleet. Wisely, President Nixon has turned 180 degrees away from "spheres of influence" and, little by little, is pulling American soldiers home from Taiwan, Vietnam, Germany and Japan.

We have been the self-appointed guardians of what is right and just in the world. Often, we play God. I am not an isolationist and cannot equate my political credo with that of the late Colonel "Bertie" McCormick of Chicago, but I do believe that our best efforts and our primary goal should be to take care of the 208,000,000 people in the United States.

If, after we give them a livelihood with reasonable food, clothing and housing, there is something left — give it to the helpless in other parts of the world. India, with 547,000,000 people, many of them starving, has sufficient strength to fight and defeat West Pakistan. We have sent billions in money and grain to the Hindus and when they go to war we back the losers.

I have been around the world twice, and I have seen the only durable items America has exported: white crosses in neat rows around the globe. We have two kinds of soldiers: the living and the dead. The dead have been forgotten, except for fresh coats of white paint every few years.

The living must be armed, clothed, fed and paid. The billions of dollars they cost is spent largely in countries they occupy. For years the defeated in wars suffered such occupancy because it was the only way to become rich again. They took American dollars from our soldiers and exchanged them for gold from Fort Knox.

Our military experts know — but do not mention it — that what America requires toward the end of the 20th century is a big mobile navy, big air force, a small elite army and the ICBM missiles we already have.

I will not say that President Nixon won his first round with the Chinese. The communists are clear he gave more than he got. Any high school student can research the subject of Taiwan, or any of the other lands we claim to protect with our lives and our treasure, in the local library.

If he wants to get an "A" he had better begin by stating that Uncle Sam is a sentimental simpleton.

BERRY'S WORLD

ELLENVILLE James Samuel Williams, of Ellenville, was remanded to Ulster County Jail to await grand jury action on the charge of murder against him following a preliminary hearing in Ellenville Village Court Tuesday night before Village Justice Ronald W. Elias.

Williams faces the murder charge in connection with the shooting death of his wife, Icie Williams, Feb. 13, at 12 Canal Street, Ellenville.

The security procedures for the hearing were very tight. The number of people allowed in court was limited to the number of seats available, about 70, and every one was frisked for weapons before they were allowed to enter the court room.

A large contingent of State and village police were present for the hearing, pictures were taken of the entire audience by Ellenville Police Sgt. John Corwin.

When Williams was arraigned Feb. 14, the arraignment was held in private in Elias' chambers, with only the press admitted. The private session was held because of threats Williams told State Police he had received against his life. An angry crowd gathered outside the State Police car transporting Williams to jail Feb. 14, and some difficulty was had clearing a way.

During testimony Tuesday night, Elias had to call for order several times, and threatened to clear the court room. Several women in the audience wept during the testimony about the night of the shooting.

The principal witness for the prosecution was 14-year-old Wilbert J. Randolph Jr., who testified under questioning that he saw Williams, his stepfather, point a gun at his mother, Icie Williams, and he heard a shot while Williams was pointing the gun.

Young Randolph, self-possessed and composed during questioning testified that he was in his bedroom watching television with his brother, Michael Randolph, and a family friend, John Stone, when they heard the door open, and Williams' voice.

According to Randolph, his brother opened the bedroom door and saw his mother lying on the couch, with Williams talking loudly to her and pointing a gun at her. As Mrs. Williams started to get up from the couch, a shot was heard and she told her sons and Stone to "get down and close the door," according to testimony by Randolph.

After hearing "five or six" more shots, Randolph said, the back door was heard to open. He said he and his brother went outside after Randolph called his aunt. His mother was later found at a neighbor's house. She died at Ellenville Hospital that night.

Close questioning by Ellenville attorney Herbert Weins off, representing Williams, did not shake Randolph's story.

Also called was Dr. Mansur M. Dahodwala, the attending physician for Mrs. Williams when she was brought in the night of Feb. 13.

Dr. Dahodwala testified that she had died "within minutes" after entering the hospital, but was not pronounced dead until all methods of resuscitation had failed.

He said he had diagnosed at the time that the probable cause of death was shock due to internal hemorrhage caused by "puncture wounds."

Mrs. Minnie Hall was sworn in, but did not have to testify after a stipulation between Asst. District Attorney Joseph Traficanti, and Weins off.

Elias refused to allow Weins off to call witnesses on Williams' behalf, but said Williams, under the law, had the "right" to testify on his own behalf if he chose. Williams did not testify. Elias said the purpose of the hearing was to determine if a crime had been committed, and there were reasonable grounds to think Williams had done it.

Weins off objected to Elias' refusal to allow defense witnesses, but Elias maintained his ruling, and refused explanation.

Elias also ruled against a Weins off motion to have the charge against Williams dismissed; Weins off alleged the prosecution had failed to show grounds, had failed to establish a crime had been committed, and had failed to properly identify the deceased or connect her with the woman who died.

George Washington School, The Republican City Com- mittee.

During the county convention, Assemblyman Emeel Betros will be the nominee in the new 99th Assembly District.

It is anticipated that Assemblyman Edwyn E. Mason of Hobart will be the candidate for State Senate in the new 48th Senatorial District and that Senator Sen. Richard Schermerhorn will be recommended for candidacy in the new 40th Senatorial District.

Bell, Betros, Mason and Schermerhorn have all been invited to the convention and are expected to attend.

Recommendations are also expected for the nomination of Albert Spada for another term as county clerk and William S. Keyser for another term as secretary of the Ulster County GOP.

In addition, state committee men and women will be named for the assembly districts and delegates and alternates to the National Republican Convention will be selected. There will also be the naming of alternates and delegates to the Republican Convention for the Third Judicial District.

The committeemen will not name anyone as candidates for the three congressional seats being imposed on Ulster County. Those candidates will be named at congressional conventions held in each of the three newly created congressional districts, according to Clarence Anderson, as county clerk and William S. Keyser for another term as secretary of the Ulster County GOP.

Former Republican Minority Leader of the Kingston City Council, John Machione is a majority of them.

To date there has been little apparent interest in the post on the part of other possible contenders although it is reported that there is a faction interested in having the post Ulster County Republican become appointive rather than Committee Convention, then it elective. It has been suggested that Machione will that the County Chairman be nominated by Robert Winnie Albert Spada name a person to with City Legislator Raymond the post, possibly one of the Armater seconding the three vice county chairmen. At nomination, present only two of three vice chairmen positions are filled.

Machione's backers contend that the position should remain elective. They point out that the state GOP chairman does not appoint county chairmen, nor do county chairmen appoint town chairmen therefore why should it be a county chairman appoint a city chairman they ask.

Former Republican Minority Leader of the Kingston City Council, John Machione is a majority of them.

To date there has been little apparent interest in the post on the part of other possible contenders although it is reported that there is a faction interested in having the post Ulster County Republican become appointive rather than Committee Convention, then it elective. It has been suggested that Machione will that the County Chairman be nominated by Robert Winnie Albert Spada name a person to with City Legislator Raymond the post, possibly one of the Armater seconding the three vice county chairmen. At nomination, present only two of three vice chairmen positions are filled.

Machione's backers contend that the position should remain elective. They point out that the state GOP chairman does not appoint county chairmen, nor do county chairmen appoint town chairmen therefore why should it be a county chairman appoint a city chairman they ask.

Consulting Firm Okays Power Authority Project

GILBOA, N.Y. (AP) — The odds of high demand for electricity. The Glenheim-Gilboa plant is designed to supply power for the upstate areas, while the second facility would supply the metropolitan New York City area. The engineering firm estimated the price of a one-million-kilowatt underground power plant and its related reservoirs and equipment at $177.6 million, based on 1971 costs. Doubling the output of the plant would boost the price to $332 million, the firm said.

The authority said that additional studies are underway and that a firm decision on construction of the facility is still some time away. Construction would take about 4½ years, the consulting firm estimated.

The New York City firm of Uhl, Hall and Rich studied several differing sets of plans for the project and reported that "there appear to be no unusual problems in constructing any of the alternatives investigated," the authority said.

Like the Glenheim-Gilboa pumped storage power project nearing completion a few miles south of the proposed site of the second plant, the project has aroused heated opposition. It would take 2,000 acres of land, including 800 acres of farmland, for two reservoirs. In addition, more than 40 houses, 15 trailers and a gas station would be displaced by the project, according to power authority estimates.

The new facility would pump water from a downstream reservoir into two reservoirs at higher elevation during periods of low power demand. The water from the upper reservoirs would be funneled through underground conduits to a power station and used to generate electricity during periods of high demand.

KINGSTON, N.Y. — Investigation of the death of Theodore Warrick, 41, of Flatbush Road, Town of Ulster, who was injured in a traffic accident Saturday night, is being continued, according to authorities.

Warrick was injured when his car was involved in a collision on Route 32 at the intersection of Old Flatbush Road with a car driven by Robert M. Perry, 22, of Route 4, Box 159, Saugerties, according to State Police.

Warrick died Monday at 3:45 p.m. at Benedictine Hospital, where he had been under treatment for fractured ribs, lacerations and other injuries. The cause of death has not been determined, according to reports.

Commercial Artist Field...Many Jobs Available

By TIM SCHUSTER

POUGHKEEPSIE
Is there a discouraging job market for this year's June graduates?

Yes and no, according to manpower experts. But some fields virtually assure a well-trained person a job, and one is the commercial artist.

According to David Lax, chairman of the commercial art program at Dutchess Community College, "Today, no talented, well-trained commercial artist has to worry about employment. He's needed everywhere. Note the advertising pages and special sale inserts of the very newspaper you are reading."

Professor Lax commented, stimulate sales, provide jobs, at Dutchess since the first class was graduated in 1965. Prepared at a comparatively early age for entry into a competitive, creative field, Dutchess graduates are currently at work in a variety of national advertising agencies and industrial firms as diverse as the J. Walter Thompson agency in New York and the General Electric Company in Schenectady. The majority of the graduates, however, remain in the area, working as artists and junior art directors for area printing firms, art and design outlets, and as illustrators with many manufacturing firms. In earning their associate in applied science degree, commercial art students complete more than 35 credit hours in significant areas of the field including displays, layouts, illustrations, lettering, album art offerings.

covers, bookjackets, product ads, photography, airbrush work, cartooning and animation. In the years ahead, as visual communication needs expand and become more complex, the college anticipates greater diversification in its commercial art offerings.

Both speakers will answer questions from the floor.

It was noted that among friends expected to attend are Mr. and Mrs. John Connell, Rhinebeck residents, who starred in the television series "Young Doctor Malone", and their daughter Cathy, also an aspiring actress.

Mrs. Battistoni also noted that materials for the new Chamber brochure of the Rhinebeck area is "finally in the hands of the printer" and the brochure is expected to become a reality soon.

Sewer Vote in Ulster

By JON POWERS

LAKE KATRINE

The New York State Department of Audit and Control has approved a Town of Ulster application to raise an additional $1.9 million to complete the town's Sewer Improvement Area.

The additional money has already been authorized by the Ulster Town Board, which then set a referendum date of March 25 for final voter approval. The state agency approved the project on Thursday.

On Nov. 23, 1968, Town of Ulster residents approved a $4,528,000 bond issue to form the Sewer Improvement Area. Construction first began on May 17, 1971.

Now, town residents have been asked to approve an additional $1.9 million so that the project can be completed. The project, if approved, will now cost $6,428,000.

The approval of the Department of Audit and Control had to be obtained before the town could raise the extra money. John J. Feeney, deputy comptroller, in approving the application, said "...the public interest will be served by the proposed increase in the maximum amount to be expended for said sewer improvement" and "...the additional amount to be expended for such purposes will not be an undue burden upon the property in the benefited area of the town."

The March 25 referendum will be held at the Chambers School from 12 noon to 8 p.m. Residents living in the Ulster Sewer Improvement Area and persons who own taxable real property in the Sewer Improvement Area are eligible to vote.

There are an estimated 1,500 homes in the 3.7 square miles of the Sewer Improvement

Area, which runs from the Kingston City line to Leggs Mills Road and then along the Esopus Creek back to the city line. Property owners in the Sewer Improvement Area will pay the entire town share of the project, which is $5,056,620. State and federal aid will total about $1.3 million.

The additional money is needed to complete the project, according to town officials, because of unexpected increases in interest rates and construction costs.

Residents of the Sewer Improvement Area will begin paying for the sewer project in 1974. The debt service for the project will be highest in 1974, when the tax rate per $1,000 of assessed valuation is estimated to be $48.34 for the sewer project alone. The amount will decrease each year after that.

Construction meanwhile, continues on the town's new sewage treatment plant and the laying of some sewer lines has already begun. Contract No. 2, covering interceptor sewer lines, has been completed, but town officials have emphasized that the project will not be put into operation unless all phases are completed.

Speed Reading Program Set

KINGSTON, N.Y. — The Daily Freeman, in cooperation with the Institute for Continuing Learning, will sponsor a free demonstration of speed reading at John A. Coleman High School on Tuesday, March 21, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Those who attend will be given an opportunity to test their reading speed and preview the speed reading course developed by Xerox Education Systems, a Xerox Education Company.

According to Larry Schwartz, director of the Institute, a tremendous need exists for help that will enable people to improve their reading skills.

"Modern life requires that we all read more than ever before," he said. "Yet the vast majority of people are just not equipped to handle the reading demands of their school, job, business, or profession."

He said that business executives, students, and professionals all can benefit from speed reading, but that it can also help anyone with at least an eighth grade education to read better and faster.

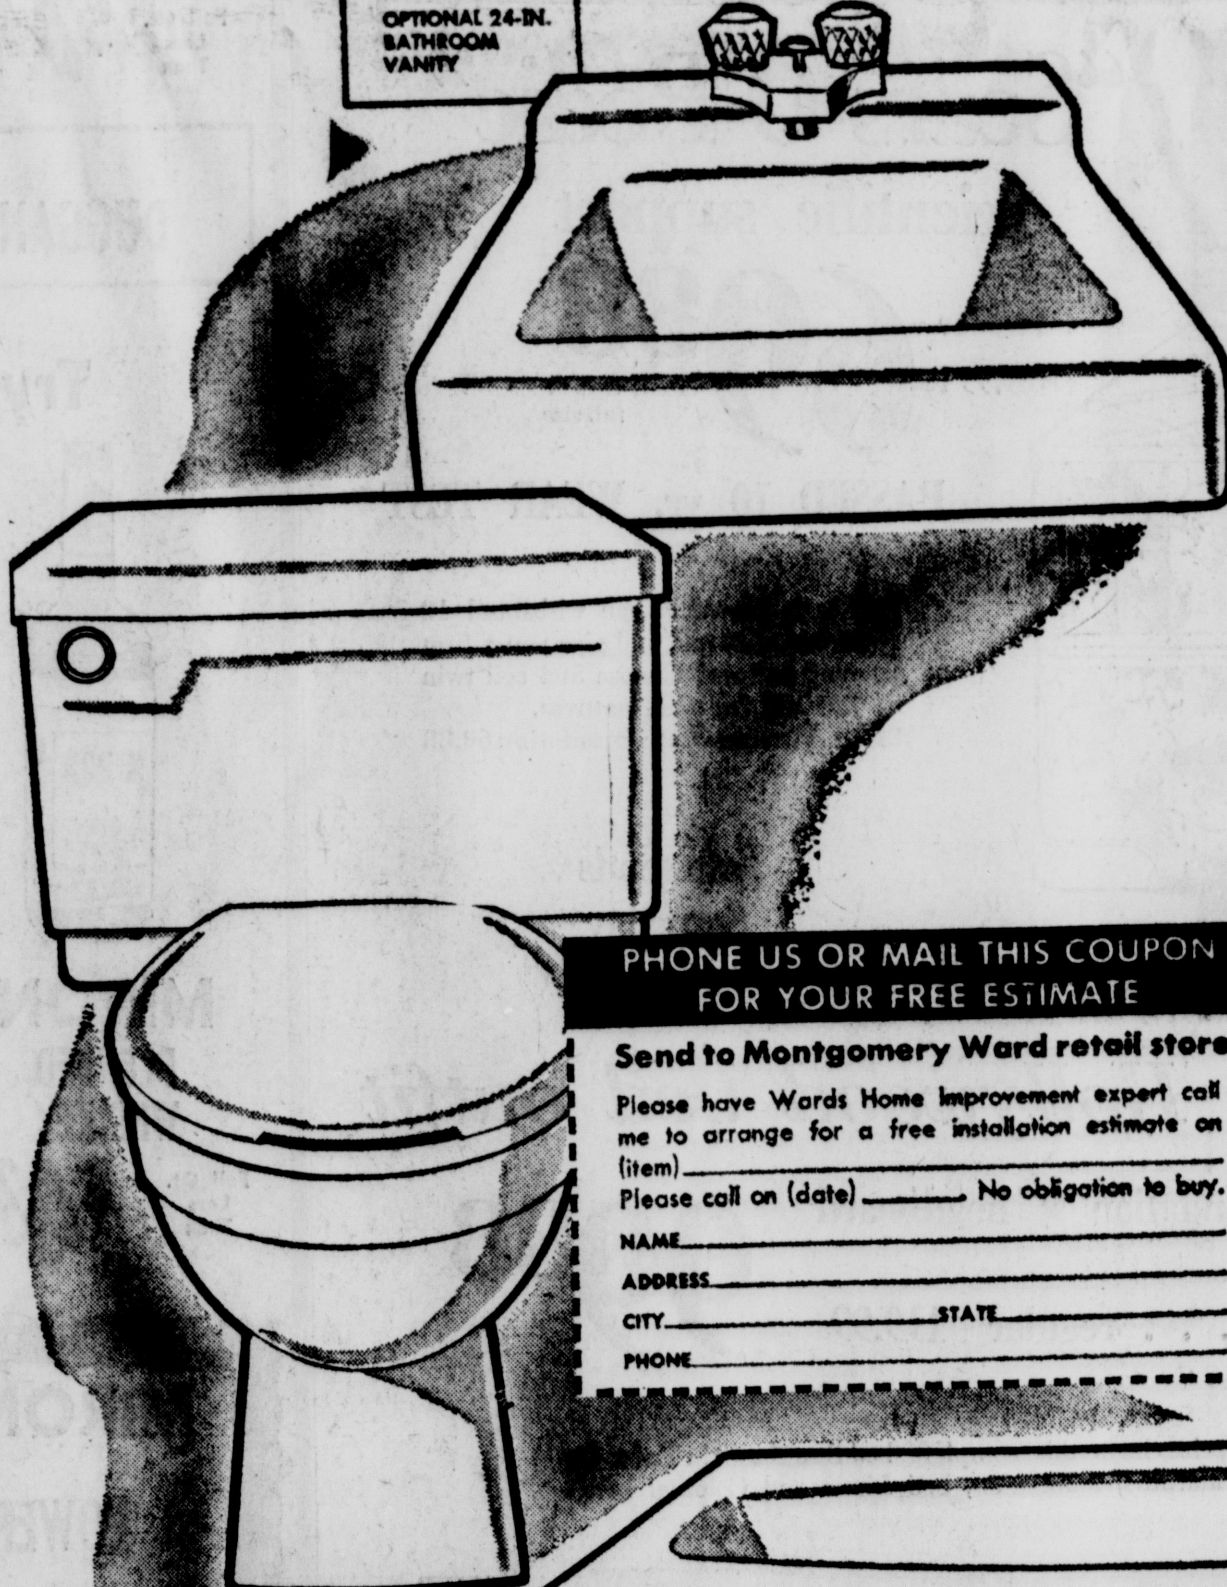

He extended an invitation to anyone interested in learning more about the reading program to attend the free demonstration and ask any questions he might have. Seats may be reserved by writing to the Institute For Continuing Education, Conference Center, College Motor Inn, New Paltz, N.Y. 12561.

A&P Stores Go Economy

KINGSTON — On Hurley Avenue in Kingston A & P, America's No. 1 food and the Manchester Road and retailer, introduced an entirely new concept in food stores this week with the grand opening of four W-E-O Stores (Where Economy Originates) in the Kingston and Poughkeepsie area.

And, according to J. L. Wood, local manager of the new A & P store on East Chester Street, the new concept in grocery store shopping met with instant approval of local shoppers. "Prices are now lower than discount prices," Wood added and emphasized the fact that "these are permanent prices, not just for a sale promotion." And with these new lower prices, the local manager stressed, "there are definite savings for our customers."

Meanwhile, Frank Burke, vice president and general manager of A & P's Albany Division, said the entire chain is "very excited about this new W-E-O concept." W-E-O reaffirms A & P's century-old reputation as the place "where economy originates."

In addition, Burke went on to say, "we will continue to offer customers A & P's famous guarantee of quality."

Burke explained the functions of the new W-E-O concept.

Successful Enucleation Announced

KINGSTON Conservation Committee, was notified of the death of an eye donor. The enucleation, or removal of the eyes, was performed immediately by Dr. Adolfo Magtoto at Benedictine Hospital. Schaller and Lions Club president Francis Kugelman assisted and made all necessary arrangements. The eyes were placed in a special ice-packed container and rushed to Albany County Air-Port, where a jet was waiting to transfer the eyes to Sibley Memorial Hospital in Washington, D.C. The eye transplant was successfully completed that afternoon. The arrangements for the transplant in Washington, according to Kugelman, were made under the auspices of the Sight Conservation Society of Northeastern New York. "The gift of sight has long been the major project of the Kingston Lions Club," said Kugelman, "as well as Lions Clubs all over the world." The Sight Conservation Committee of the Kingston Lions Club has participated in eye enucleation activities for the past 18 years, and some 70 persons have had their sight restored through the club's efforts. The Blind and Sight Conservation Committee also conducts a number of other services for the blind and sight handicapped residents of Ulster County, including sponsorship of SEEC, an organization for the sightless. Persons who are interested in donating their eyes after death should contact any member of the Lions Club.

Exposition Chairman Tabbed

KINGSTON Francis Kugelman Jr., president of the Kingston Lions Club, announced today the appointment of Richard R. Fredenberg as chairman of the 25th annual Kingston Lions Club Exposition and Home Show, scheduled for April 25-28 at the New York State Armory on Manor Avenue. Fredenberg is proprietor of the Jennifer Shop at 295 Wall Street. He is a graduate of East Stroudsburg State College, where he received a B.S. degree in education. Fredenberg served three years during World War II as an Army pilot. He joined Sears Roebuck and Co. in 1952, and in 1966 was transferred to Kingston to open the Sears complex here. He served as merchandising manager until August, 1969, when he opened the Jennifer Shop. Fredenberg is first vice-president of the Kingston Lions Club and a member of the Board of Directors of the Uptown Businessmen's Association. He is a member of the Ulster County Parking Committee, the Redeemer Lutheran Church and Wiltwyck Country Club. He resides in Woodstock with his wife, Louise, and their daughter, Jennifer. The Exposition is expected to attract over 20,000 persons for the second consecutive year. Last year's attendance was 22,386.

FISH, HASH Groups Help Those in Need

HYDE PARK FISH and HASH, while seemingly suitable for a restaurant menu, are acronyms for community action groups in Hyde Park to help those who sometimes need it. H A S H (Help Alleviate Sporadic Hunger) is a new service which has been initiated by FISH (Friends In Service Helping). Local residents, through their churches, have donated packaged foods for a food shelf, which has been supplemented by the donation of the offering from the Hyde Park Thanksgiving eve ecumenical service. Some services not limited to temporary emergencies are: companionship for shut-ins; information on community services; jobs for teenagers as a part-time employment service. FISH has been in operation for two years, and has about 80 volunteers. Flyers reminding residents of the services of FISH will be distributed through the Hyde Park schools in the near future. Volunteers are welcome.

Murder Trial Opens Today

KINGSTON Fogarty allegedly went back downstairs, obtained a .22 caliber rifle and allegedly shot Washington Avenue. Sauter, Conley in the back of his head who is under indictment accused of the murder of a 26-year-old man last March 25, was scheduled to begin at 2 p.m. today before County Judge Raymond J. Mino.

A jury of five men and seven women was selected after a pre-trial hearing Tuesday afternoon.

Fogarty is accused of the rifle shooting of William Conley of Route 1, Box 301, Saugerties. The defendant had previously pleaded innocent to the indictment.

The shooting occurred at the home of Walter and Arlene Dill on Route 32A. Saxton, according to State Police, who said Mrs. Dill is Fogarty's sister.

Fogarty and Conley were staying at the Dill residence the night of the shooting. In retracing the events that came to light during the early investigation, authorities said that Fogarty and the Dills were on the second floor of the house apparently preparing to retire for the night.

Conley reportedly was downstairs watching television in the living room. Investigators said that

New Organization Formed

WOODSTOCK There's a brand new organization on the Woodstock scene, and its name is COPE (Committee Organized to Preserve the Environment). The group was formed Sunday night as a direct result of the picketing by Woodstock residents on Saturday at the Grand Union supermarket on the main thoroughfare in the art colony. It has been set up as an ad hoc petitioning committee, and its first phase got underway Monday night with the distribution of petitions which will call upon Grand Union to abandon its proposed plans for a shopping center on the Town House property at the entrance to Woodstock.

Sean O'Brien, a spokesman for the group, says COPE has no plans "at this point" to call for a boycott of the existing supermarket on Mill Hill Road. The committee will concentrate instead on gathering signatures from local residents it knows are in sympathy with its cause. "Many Woodstockers consider the projected shopping center a threat to the environment," says O'Brien. "The response to our picketing last Saturday was very gratifying, and hundreds of people have signed up to help."

Those who signed will be recruited to solicit signatures on the petitions, and COPE is convinced it will be able to forward to Grand Union at least 1,000 names opposed to a shopping center at the junction of Routes 212 and 375 within a week or two.

At a Planning Board meeting last week at which Grand Union asked for a change in the local zoning ordinance which would allow it to proceed with plans for the shopping center, COPE organizers made it clear they felt dangerous traffic conditions and a destruction of aesthetic values would result from the project.

Grand Union must still present more substantial plans to the Planning Board before any decision is made, and the final decision could take months since that board's recommendations must then go to the Town Board for the final nod or denial.

In the meantime, COPE will bring as much pressure as possible to bear against Grand Union for abandonment of its plans through petitioning and picketing.

O'Brien also says the group will enlarge its activities in time to take stands against other environmental inroads being made in Woodstock by new commercial buildings replacing historic sites or open land.

One possible target for the near future might well be an effort to save the historic Longyear Building on Rock City Road, due for removal by the National Bank of Orange and Ulster Counties to provide room for expansion of its present branch office next door.

Committee

Arrangements are nearing completion for the 33rd annual banquet of the Ulster County Restaurant, Hotel and Liquor Dealers Association to be held April 11 at the Villa Nueva in Plattekill. A special program of entertainment and many other features are planned. Discussing plans are (seated l-r) Clint Theysohn, vice president of the unit and committee chairman and Max DelCotto, president. Standing (l-r) Fritz Doeblner and Everett Merz. ## Fishing Guide Is Available

KINGSTON The latest edition of Ulster County's new Fishing Brochure packed with information valuable to the sportsman preparing to participate in the trout season April 1 is now available.

The new four-color brochure, just off the press, is dominated by a detailed map showing all streams in Ulster County and the names of communities where suitable lodgings are available for the vacationing fisherman. Also included is a list of all town clerk's names and addresses for those who require detailed information including the best places to fish.

Ulster County boasts some of the finest and most productive fishing streams in the state and in most cases in no more than two and one-half to three hours a way from New York's metropolitan area and New England nearby points. The fabulous Esopus Creek, the Rondout, Shawangunk Kill, Plattekill and Ashokan Reservoir are reputed to be among the best trout fishing grounds in the state.

A free copy of the new brochure is available by writing to Ulster County Resort Information Office, Dept. FP, P.O. Box 521, Kingston, N.Y. 12401.

This office also has a complete list of places to stay, places to visit and locations of sports and vacation trailer parks.

Those visiting the Sportsmen's Show March 4 through 11 at the Coliseum in New York City will find Ulster County brochures available at various booths including Campground Owners of New York (CONY), Booth 2308 and the State Department of Commerce Booth 2411.

Registration Date Listed at Coleman

KINGSTON Registration for students intending to enter John A. Coleman High School will be held Sunday, March 12, from 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the school gymnasium.

Admission notices have been sent to 230 prospective freshmen from the Kingston area, school officials said. Anticipated enrollment for the semester beginning in September, 1972, is approximately 500 students in grades 9 through 12.

A tuition charge of $450 will be in effect for the 1972-73 school year, payable on a monthly basis. A financial assistance program, similar to that used by many colleges, is available to students on request.

John A. Coleman High School is a coeducational secondary school of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of New York. Although a major segment of the student body is of the Catholic faith, several other religions are represented. The school offers general, academic, and college preparatory programs including advanced courses, all of which lead to majors in art, business education, language, mathematics, mechanical drawing and science.

New Booths Are Added For Scout Spectacular

KINGSTON The area to man a booth. The purpose of guest booths, Kamper said, is to provide items of interest and value to Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts and to demonstrate some of the interests of the Rip Van Winkle Council that are external to Scouting.

The public is invited to attend the Spectacular, which will be open from 12:30 p.m. to 10 p.m.

Several new guest booths have been added for the annual Scout Spectacular to be held Saturday at the New York State Armory on Manor Avenue.

In addition to last year's guests, the Rip Van Winkle Council, Boy Scouts of America, plans to have the Kingston Narcotics Guidance Council on hand to provide informative literature to young people and adults concerning narcotics and their uses.

Other booths will be manned by the Kingston Jaycees, Father LaBarr, whose booth will center around religious awards available to Scouts of all faiths, and John Matthews of Kingston, who will display photographs and artifacts depicting the evolution of the Kingston community.

Publicity and Guests Chairman Joseph T. Kamper has also invited the Girl Scouts of

City Common Council Floats Treatment Plant Bill

By HUGH REYNOLDS
KINGSTON

The Common Council, in a marathon session Tuesday night, moved major legislation ranging from a million-dollar appropriation for a new sewage treatment plant to a planning study for Central Broadway to the setting of public hearings for two new developments in the city's urban renewal projects.

The secondary waste water treatment plant which will go into construction next month will raise the city's debt limit by $1,142,732. Total cost of the project is $2,856,878 of which the federal government will pay $816,250 and the state will pay $879,876. Serial bonds will be issued by the city for a term of 40 years. The vote was unanimous, there was no comment on the legislation.

Application will be made for the long awaited planning study for Central Broadway with federal and state agencies. The city will spend $712 as its share or 17 per cent of the estimated $4,190 cost of the planning study.

Further down Broadway in the area from Kingston Hospital to East Chestnut Street, the aldermen heard complaints of crime in the area. David Mahoney, owner of Mahoney's Pub, representing business people in the area, addressed the Council and told a story of "harassment and terrorism" from persons living at 351-353 Broadway. He said people "were afraid to come into the area," and called for "some kind of action, some kind of results," from the city.

Alderman Peter Mancuso (D-12th Ward) referred to the two buildings as "the Sussin property" and noted that he had taken the Council floor on numerous other occasions to complain about conditions there. Mancuso said that an inspection tour by Building Inspector George E. Radcliffe, officers from the fire department and himself had revealed 20 building code infractions and that "only about two or three have been corrected."

Alderman Thomas Davitt (R-Seventh Ward) asked Corporation Counsel Aaron E. Klein what was being done about it and was informed that the owner, Herbert Sussin, faced a city court appearance on March 13 to answer the charges of building code violations.

Public hearings were set for March 27 at 7:30 p. m. in the Council Chambers on requests by the Hanover Company of Merrit, L. I., to build a shopping plaza in Broadway East and by the Friendly Ice Cream Company to build off Joy's Lane in the Uptown Urban Renewal Project. Both redevelopers were judged qualified and eligible by the Council. The cost of the five-acre parcel in Broadway East will be $25,000. The cost of the one-acre site for Friendly Ice Cream will be $24,500.

The Laws and Rules Committee did not report on a request for a zoning change at the St. Anne's Convent at Orchard Street and Broadway to permit the construction of a Grand Union supermarket. Laws and Rules Chairman Donald E. Quick said the committee would hold the request until action is taken on the Hanover proposal to build that shopping plaza in Broadway East. Mayor Francis R. Koenig is opposed to the Grand Union proposal because he says he feels it would jeopardize the Broadway East project. He threatened to veto it if it was passed by the Council.

The Council also gave salary increases to a number of city officials. The clerk, assessor and treasurer were increased from $9,500 to $10,000 a year; the corporation counsel got a raise from $8,500 to $9,500, the city judge went from $7,500 to $8,500 and the special city judge from $1,500 to $2,000. All these increases were in the form of local laws which were read for the first time at the February meeting of the Council.

Mayor Koenig's emergency bus powers were extended until May 16. Under those powers, the city leased a bus from Jerry Ausanio and has run it on one of the regular routes since Jan. 17. The city lost some $840 on the operation, noted the mayor, with the fare at 25 cents. The aldermen took the hint last night and raised the bus fare to 35 cents. Only one alderman opposed it. Edward Norton (D-11th Ward), who voted against the legislation, Norton explained that he did not oppose the extension of the mayor's emergency powers; he opposed the fare increase, stating that people could not afford the extra dime.

Contracts for some 100 workers in the Department of Public Works, substantially agreed to in December of last year, were approved by the aldermen last night. The two-year contract ends on Dec. 31, 1973.

The aldermen also voted to spend $6,300 for three new voting machines which will bring the city's total up to 38. Alderman Clifford G. Sinsabaugh (D-10th Ward), opposed that legislation, stating that the extra machines were not needed. Sinsabaugh pointed out that the city has 26 polling places and that each machine could handle 900 voters.

Mancuso, in voting for the new machines, noted that they would be needed during the peak voting hours on Election Day, between 6:30 and 8:30 in the evening.

Sinsabaugh also resumed his attacks on Charles J. Cole, superintendent of public works for Cole's absence from the city during the big snowstorm three weeks ago.

Sinsabaugh said that both

Cole and his assistant, Emerson Mayes, were out of town, that neither the mayor, alderman-at-large or majority leader and minority leader of the Council knew where Cole was, and charged Cole with negligence of duty. He called for a complete investigation by the mayor and the commissioners of the DPW.

In other actions portions of three streets, Anne Street, Chambers Street and East Union were transferred to the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency for the completion of the Broadway East Project.

The city also put up for sale a portion of land it owns adjoining Dietz Stadium and the Urban Renewal Uptown Project. A small parcel, it measures .085 of an acre.

Minority Leader Brian Smith (R-Third Ward), moved that the meeting be adjourned in memory of "a great Kingstonian," N. LeVan Haver, former Ulster County district attorney, who died recently.

New Citizens Take Allegiance Oath

By CARL GRAHAM

KINGSTON

A dozen persons from eight countries, including three married couples, were sworn in as new American citizens Tuesday by Supreme Court Justice Harold J. Hughes Jr. in a colorful ceremony in the Ulster County Court House.

Swearing allegiance to their adopted country were Mrs. Perla Tilos Grover of Kingston (Philippine Republic), Michael Varga of Kerhonkson (Czechoslovakia), Mrs. Catherine Hickey of Kingston (Ireland), Lothar Latendorf of Saugerties (Germany), Shig-Chou Pi and his wife, Mrs. Joan Ching-Wan Pi of Kingston (China), Francis Raynaud of Shandaken (France), Peter Paul Gaffney of Saugerties (Ireland) and his wife, Mrs. Ena Gaffney (England), Dr. Ching Hsu Wang and his wife, Mrs. York May Wang of Kingston (Crown Colony of Hong Kong), and Mrs. Isolde Elizabeth Constant of Kingston (Germany).

"In this era of protest," Judge Hughes told the new citizens, "when many of our native born citizens criticize this country for failing to achieve perfection, the fact that you and many like you who have had an opportunity to observe and compare, have chosen to make America your adopted homeland is an inspiration to all of us who love this country."

He called on them to take an active part in political life and reminded them that various volunteer organizations such as church groups and service clubs were deserving of their support.

The new citizens sported corsages donated by Sheriff William B. Martin and carried small flags, copies of the pledge of allegiance, the flag code, and a welcoming booklet distributed by the Wiltwyck, Saugerties, and On-ti-ora chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

The A Cappella Choir from Kingston High School sang the National Anthem and later "America the Beautiful." Two trumpeters from the high school band played "To the Colors" as a blue-uniformed color guard from the Ladies' Auxiliary of Joyce-Schirick Post 1386, VFW, paraded the colors into the courtroom for the ceremony.

In the audience were 22 members of Girl Scout Troop 76 of the Fair Street Church, Kingston, under their leader, Mrs. Ward DuBois.

Mrs. Grover, wife of an Air Force sergeant, met her husband while he was on duty in the Philippines. She has been in this country for eight years. Varga, now retired, is married to an American citizen and is the father of three children. He emigrated 44 years ago from an area in Hungary that is now a part of Czechoslovakia.

Mrs. Hickey, a widow and retired, came to this country in 1930. Pi, an electrical engineer at the Kingston IBM plant, studied at the University of Missouri. He met his wife in New York City where they were married seven years ago. They are the parents of a five-year-old son.

Gaffney, a mason, has been here for 10 years after having lived in Canada for five years. He met his wife while working in England. Mrs. Constat, wife of a teacher at Clifford M. Miller Junior High School, emigrated from Germany 14 years ago.

Latendorf, a machinist, came to this country nine years ago and married an American citizen. They are the parents of a three-year-old son. Raynaud, headwaiter at a local restaurant, came to America from Bordeaux 12 years ago with his wife. They are the parents of a seven-year-old son. Dr. Wang, a surgeon, and his wife have been in this country for nine years and have a son, 9, and a daughter, 6. He is on the staff of Kingston and Benedictine hospitals.

As part of their conversion to American citizenship, the Wangs underwent a change of names. He will be known in the future as Michael Ching Hsu Wang and his wife will be Doris York May Wang.

Woodstock Area News

cil; Reverend Douglas Osgood, Pastor of Overlook Methodist Church; Honorable Harold Hughes, Justice Supreme Court of New York; and Charles Corcoran, Cubmaster.

Senior Board Is Underway

WOODSTOCK Supervisor Vern May to study the problems of the senior citizens in the Woodstock area, and recommend ways in which the Town might assist the older members of our community.

purpose of our group is to encourage and stimulate interest and participation of all older adults in both community activity and public affairs." She continues, "We also hope to activate recreational programs which will serve a maximum number of older adults. We're interested in all our senior citizens whether they are associated with a Senior Citizen's group or not."

Other members of the Council are: Mrs. Victor Busch, George Thompson, Jane Allen, Paul DeLisio, Elvin MacDonal, Arthur McCarthy, and Jim Myers.

Mrs. Bruckert said that contact has already been made to other Senior Citizens Councils in the area in order to see what kind of programs other groups are offering. The Woodstock group hopes to be able to recommend some new summer programs for the senior citizens.

According to Mrs. Bruckert, the key item of importance is a list of the older adults in the area. The Council is in the process of drawing such a list and invites anyone 60 or over to call Mrs. Bruckert or Arthur McCarthy.

Moderator Named for Social Workers Workshop

Lawrence Shulman, Director of Social Services, New York University Medical Center, University Hospital, New York City, will be the moderator of a workshop at the Eleventh Annual Institute of the Hudson Valley Chapter of the National Association of Social Workers (NASW) to be held at Vassar College in Poughkeepsie on Thursday, Mar. 23. The workshop is entitled "The Crisis in Health Care — 1972" — a discussion of the need to reorganize and restructure the health care system of the United States.

Shulman received a BA degree from Temple University and a Masters degree in social work from the University of Minnesota. He is a member of NASW, the Academy of Certified Social Workers, the National Council on Social Welfare, the Society of Hospital Social Work Directors of the American Hospital Association and the Council on Social Work Education.

The panelists will include Gerald Beallor, Director of Social Services, Montefiore Hospital and Medical Center, Bronx. Beallor, who has had many years of experience in the health field, is on the faculty of Albert Einstein College of Medicine in the Department of Community Medicine. He is a member of NASW and serves on the board of the New York City Chapter. He is also a member of the Academy of Certified Social Workers and is a New York State Certified Social Worker.

Harry J. Russell, assistant to the Director for Community Affairs and Director of Social Work at Perth Amboy General Hospital, Perth Amboy, New Jersey, will also be on the panel. Russell has been active in health and community activities and serves on the Board of Directors of the Community Anti-Poverty Agency. He is also consultant to the National Institutes of Mental Health and is a board member of the Society for Hospital Social Work Directors.

The all-day Institute is open to all professionals and interested persons in the nine county Hudson Valley area. Bill L. Denton, MSW, who is employed as Supervisor for the Treatment Facility of Greer Children's Community, Hope Farm and works part-time at the Family Counseling Service of Dutchess County, is general chairman for the Institute. The keynote address will be given by Dr. Frank Riessman, Professor of Educational Sociology, Director of the New Careers Development Center, N.Y.U. Ten afternoon workshops will carry out the general theme REVOLUTIONS: THE SOCIAL WORK RESPONSE.

Further information on registration is available from Mr. Denton, Box 237, Ardenia.

Lecture Planned at Vassar College

Dr. Peter Green, visiting professor of classics at the University of Texas, will speak on "The Shadow of the Parthenon" at Vassar College on Friday. The lecture on Athens in the age of Pericles will be given at 8:30 p.m. in Taylor Hall and is open to the public.

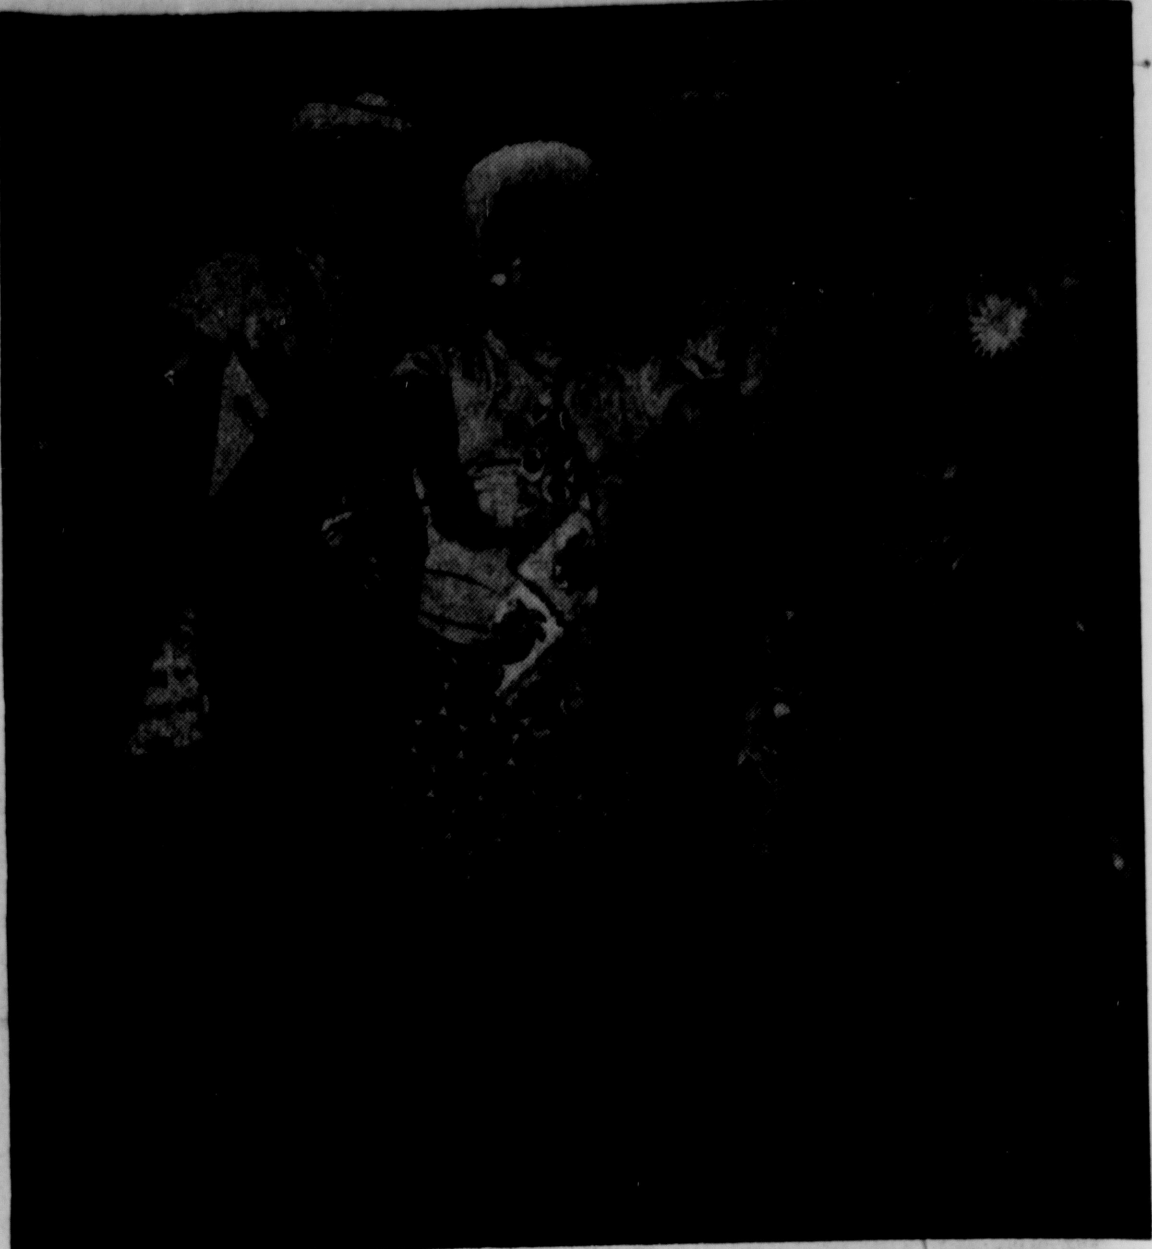

Dr. Green, who received a Ph.D. degree at Cambridge, is a Fellow of the Royal Society of Literature and former Craven Scholar.

His books on the ancient world include "Xerxes at Salamis," "Armada from Athens," a major study on the failure of the Sicilian expedition; and "Alexander the Great." He has translated Juvenal for the Penguin Classics, and numerous works from French and Italian.

OCS Carnival

The Junior Class of Ontario Central School will sponsor a carnival on Saturday in the gym. The carnival will begin at 7 and continue until 9:30. From 9:30 until 11 o'clock, a dance will be held. Music will be provided by "Gold-Brik," a band from Ulster County Community College. Various games for all ages will also take place.

THE HAYSTACK FOUR, members of the Worcester, Mass., Chapter of Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, will be one of the highlights at "Showboat Saturday Night", an evening of barbershop harmony, sponsored by Colonial City Chapter of Sweet Adelines. The production is planned for Saturday, March 11 at 8 p. m. at George Washington School. Organized six years ago, the Haystack Four sang as a pick-up quartet to help a new Chapter in its first parade. The encouraging comments received by the quartet is the reason the group is together today. The Haystack Four are past Division Six novice champs and have competed in district competition. They also have been engaged in many chapter parades in the northeast district and Nova Scotia. Members of the quartet include (L-R) Leo Pierce, baritone; Al Pruneau, tenor; Dave St. George, lead and Bill Mitchell, bass. The public is invited.

Black Poetry Reading Re-Scheduled

The long-awaited Contemporary Black Poetry reading by actress Sundra Jean Williams, twice postponed because of snow storms, will be held this Saturday evening, March 11, at the Artists Association Gallery in Woodstock, 8:30 p.m. It is being sponsored by Performing Arts of Woodstock.

Miss Williams, who has appeared on T.V., off-Broadway, and on radio, will read from the works of a number of exciting new and, in many cases, young modern Black poets, among whom there appears to be a virtual renaissance of creative ferment comparable to that enjoyed by the Elizabethan poets or the Beatniks of the 50's. She will include several musical numbers on her program, for which her accompanist will be Kingston's George Armstrong, owner of the Garden of Eden, who once accompanied Dione Warwick when she sang here several years ago under the auspices of the NAACP of Poughkeepsie.

Also on the program for the evening will be the Rev. John H. Gilmore, of Kingston, who will address the audience briefly on Black activities in the area. Special prices are available for groups of 10 or more. Call Edith LeFever, West Hurley, for information.

Tiny Tips

Save That Shirt

Blouses or shirts that have torn and are about to be disposed of can be salvaged. You can cut down these shirts to be used as dickeys under sweaters or zip front jackets.

Creative Canvas

Canvas pants are perfect for those who like to add their own creative touch to their clothes. Canvas is durable and designs or pictures can be painted on to suit your fancy.

Animal Pins

Plastic jewelry in animal forms is still an important part of the fashion picture. But translated into the more sophisticated outfits, animal pins, brooches and belt buckles are done in gold and sterling.

A touring orchestra under the direction of John Fenwick will accompany the performance. Opera lovers can see and hear the best of Canadian and International operatic singers in this production. It will be staged by the Company's General Director, Dr. Herman Geiger-Toriel. The performance here is sponsored by the Community Concert Association.

Why Keep an Old Grudge Into Second Generation?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: This may seem like a small problem to you, but it's big to me. My husband's sister is a cat. About 20 years ago my husband and I had a big fight with her, and we decided then that we wanted nothing more to do with her, and we haven't spoken since.

Well, the other day my husband ran into this cat's 28-year-old son, who invited him to his house to meet his wife and see their new baby. And my husband went!

When he told me, I wanted to wring his neck. He said he only went to meet the boy's wife and see the baby, and he didn't think there was anything wrong with it. I became terribly upset and still am. Abby, we decided 20 years ago that we wanted nothing to do with that cat. And that includes her kids! Am I wrong to be upset? Or was my husband wrong for going to his nephew's?

STILL BURNING

DEAR STILL: Obviously the nephew didn't inherit his mother's grudge against your husband or he wouldn't have invited him to his home. I think you're wrong to be upset. Most people make enough enemies in a lifetime without going into the second generation.

DEAR ABBY: This is the most difficult letter I have ever had to write, but I desperately need help with the problem, and I can't ask anyone else:

I am the only daughter of

Dear Abby

a wonderful mother who had a hard time raising my four brothers and me. She's been a widow for many years and lives alone.

Everyone loves Mom. She is so kind and good, but there is a problem which is very embarrassing to all of us. I think Mom must have lost her sense of smell, and she doesn't realize that at times (quite often, really) she has a very offensive body odor.

We have tried hinting about how "older people" should bathe more often, but it doesn't seem to penetrate.

She can't understand why her daughters-in-law don't visit her more often or invite her to their homes. It just breaks my heart to see Mom shunned this way, yet it's so hard for me to tell her. I hate to hurt her. Can you help me?

NO NAME OR CITY

DEAR NO NAME: Tell your mother that she must bathe every day in order to keep herself sweet and fragrant. Explain that the body chemistry changes as we grow older (it does), while our sense of smell sometimes diminishes. Bring her a little gift of bubble bath, soap, dusting powder and cologne when you tell her. It would be cruel to withhold such necessary help from the dear lady.

DEAR ABBY: I have been a waitress in Burlington, Ia., for nearly nine years, and I have never been able to figure out why people will come into a cafe and always sit at a table where there are dirty dishes when there are plenty of clean tables they could just as easily have sat at. I have asked waitresses who work at other restaurants, and they can't figure it out either. Can you explain it?

CAROL W.

DEAR CAROL: It's probably for the same reason people prefer to sit in a crowded little kitchen even though there is a larger, more comfortable room available. Call it the coziness of clutter. And if it's any comfort to you, it's the same in New York City as it is in Burlington.

Big Brown Eggs
3 BROTHERS HAS THEM!

DEAR ABBY: I sympathize with the woman who doesn't like to share her recipes.

I still don't give mine out unless I'm forced to, and I have yet to hear of the copycat who is as pleased with her results as she was with mine.

CAN'T SIGN MY NAME

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to say a word on behalf of our servicemen overseas concerning the criticism they receive for not writing home very often.

Most of them are busy dodging bullets, so what do they have to write home about? Should they say, "We had a great battle today. I killed four men. Wish you were here?"

Thank God my husband came home all right. In the 18 months he was gone, I got only three letters. But he came back and that's all that matters.

One thing our men overseas don't need is women nagging them to write.

Thanks for being a sounding board, Abby. God bless you. The boys overseas love you.

MRS. S. K. S.

DEAR MRS. S.: And I love them, too.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Hints From Heloise

By HELOISE CRUISE
A SPOT ANNOUNCEMENT
PAYS OFF

Dear Heloise:
As the mother of a rather large family, I am always very grateful for the money-saving ideas in your column. Now I want to share one of mine with you. With three girls in the house, there were many white blouses they would no longer wear because of a stain or because of the just plain gray, grimy look of old age. I found tie-dyeing — so popular with the younger set — was the perfect answer. My girls like "boy shirts" so I even tie-dyed some of my boy's old white shirts for them.

It's a really good way to make use of clothes that hang in the closets and are never worn.

Any color or combinations of colors and designs is possible and they'll love you for adding a new touch to their old wardrobe.

This can also be done to colored shirts. Just use color remover for the same effect.

A Mom

Gal, I think you've really got something there — a terrific wardrobe pepper-upper plus a real whing-ding of a money-saving idea.

Heloise

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:
My husband works for a newspaper as a reporter. I often pack his lunch and sometimes I make soft tacos for him out of flour tortillas and my "Very Best in the World Chili" (no, no one gets the recipe for it).

The problem was keeping these delights warm. I know how almost anyone connected with a paper drinks gallons of coffee each day. Most newspaper offices have large, busy coffee urns (and woe to the copy boy who forgets to keep that urn full). This led me to think of all that wasted heat above the coffee grounds.

I wrapped the tacos in aluminum foil and told my husband to lay the package on top of the grounds.

The steam keeps the food warm and the foil keeps the grounds from getting to the food.

My husband said this works great as long as someone doesn't empty the grounds to start a fresh pot.

Mrs. S.H.

... or until word gets around where those little goodies are stored ...

Milwaukee Just Can't Handle the Knicks

NY Does It Again, 110-101

By United Press International

The odds are mounting that the Milwaukee Bucks will never repeat as National Basketball Association champions if they meet the New York Knicks in the playoff finals.

Milwaukee felt it was playing a second-rate contender when Baltimore reached the final playoff round last season. Nobody argued with the Bucks' reasoning after they beat the Bulls four straight.

The Bucks now want the Knicks in the championship round. They've been so psychologically brow-beaten that the Bucks feel they can't call themselves champions until Milwaukee can take New York consistently.

That's almost like trying to hold back the tide. Milwaukee has won only five of 26 games against New York. Since Kareem Abdul-Jabbar entered the league three seasons ago, the Bucks have beaten the Knicks only five times in 20 encounters.

The Knicks made this season's tally three-for-four Tuesday night with a 110-101 victory over the Bucks that kept New York's hopes alive for catching the Atlantic Division-leading Boston Celtics. The Knicks are only four games back, but have played two games less.

Jerry Lucas, continuing his long distance cannonading, led Milwaukee's defense for 30 points. He hit 13-of-22 shots and almost all of his field goals were from 25 feet out.

Lucas also became the fifth player in NBA history to reach the 12,000-rebound plateau. He needed four rebounds going into the game and emerged with 14. Wilt Chamberlain of Los Angeles and Walt Bellamy of Atlanta are the only other active players to grab 12,000 rebounds. Bill Russell and Bob Pettit accumulated 21,721 and 12,851, respectively, before retiring.

"Technique, timing and jumping ability play important factors in good rebounding," Lucas says. "I've been blessed with timing, the other two attributes take care of themselves. I worked six to eight hours on my rebounding when I was a kid and it paid off."

Lucas said it was important that his outside jump shot work perfectly.

"I had the jump working and was able to get Kareem (Abdul-Jabbar) away from the hoop," Lucas said. "That way I opened it up for every one."

As to New York's domination over Milwaukee, Frazier said: "It's got to be a psychological thing with them now. We know we can beat them."

Milwaukee kept pace with New York for two periods, earning a 32-32 first period tie and a 56-56 intermission deadlock before New York drew away in the third quarter. Jabbar scored a game-high 35 points.

In other NBA action, Los Angeles downed Philadelphia 114-97. Golden State beat Cleveland 119-112. Baltimore stopped Seattle 105-98. Phoenix rapped Detroit, 129-121 and Portland whipped Buffalo 98-94.

Gail Goodrich, the league's sixth leading scorer, netted 25 points as Los Angeles won its 60th game of the season against just 12 losses. Fred Carter pumped in 20 points for the 76ers who lost their 44th game. Golden State edged a game ahead of Seattle in the run for the Pacific Division's remaining playoff berth. Nate Thurmond contributed 30 points to the Warrior victory. A 19-point first period lead saved Golden State as Cleveland, led by Rick Roberson's 23 points, outscored the Warriors in each of the remaining three quarters.

Seattle was victimized by the Bulls' torrid 33-18 first quarter surge. Mike Riordan led Baltimore with 21 points and Len Wilkens paced Seattle with 19.

Connie Hawkins scored 13 of his 28 points in the third quarter when Phoenix scored 45 points against Detroit and pinned the Pistons with their seventh consecutive defeat. Bob Lanier scored 42 points for Detroit.

Portland snapped a 13-game losing streak as Sidney Wicks scored 24 points and Geoff Petrie tallied 18. Buffalo almost overcame an 11-point lead in the final quarter when Elmore Smith scored 15 of his 24 points for the Braves and collected 11 of his 25 rebounds.

KAREEM SCORES ONE — This time Kareem Abdul-Jabbar (33) of the Bucks leaves the opposition standing on the floor as he goes right to the basket for two points in Tuesday's loss to the Knicks. The New Yorkers are Jerry Lucas (32) Bill Bradley (24) and Dave DeBusschere (R). (UPI)

Big Ten Title

Gophers Clinch

By the Associated Press

How sweet it is for the beleaguered Minnesota Gophers.

"It's a great thrill to win the Big Ten," said Bill Musselman, who suffered through the much-publicized fracas against Ohio State and tons of ensuing criticism but became the youngest coach ever to win a Big Ten basketball title when 16th-ranked Minnesota held off Purdue 49-48 Tuesday night.

Three other teams joined the Gophers in capturing NCAA Tournament berths. Unranked

Kansas State upset No. 18 Missouri 79-76 for the Big Eight crown, two free throws by Scooter Lenox with 39 seconds left gave Texas a 91-89 second victory over Southern Methodist in a Southwest Conference playoff and Ohio University's Todd Lallach scored with one second to play in overtime to give the Bobcats a 69-67 Mid-American Conference playoff triumph over Toledo.

In the three-way Ohio Valley playoff, Morehead State turned back Western Kentucky 82-79 and will face Eastern Kentucky tonight for the NCAA spot.

Minnesota's cliffhanger triumph over Purdue enabled the Gophers to finish one game ahead of Ohio State, which beat Michigan State 92-73, and gave the Gophers their first outright Big Ten championship since 1919. But it wasn't easy as a 15-point lead in the second half but held on as Purdue missed two free throws and two desperation shots down the stretch.

"The last 13 seconds was the longest I've ever spent," first-year Coach Musselman said in the surprisingly quiet dressing room.

"They're as good as any champion I've seen," said Purdue's George King. "And I think they'll represent us well. They'll match up well with anyone."

Bob Ford of Purdue led all scorers with 24 points while Clyde Turner and Jim Brewer had 12 apiece for Minnesota, which went into a stall and didn't take a shot in the final 8:13.

Ohio State's balance—all five starters scored in double figures, led by Wardell Jackson's 19 points—offset 30-point performance by Michigan State's Mike Robinson but the defending champions still finished one game behind Minnesota.

What about the National Invitation Tournament for the 18-6 Buckeyes?

"I don't know," said Coach Fred Taylor. "I don't want to comment on it."

Steve Mitchell, a 6-foot-10 junior, was the key to Kansas State's win at Missouri. His hook shot put the Wildcats ahead to stay 71-70 with 2½ minutes left. He added a three-point play with a minute remaining and Ernie Kusnyer's two free throws and three by Lon Kruger closed out the K-State scoring.

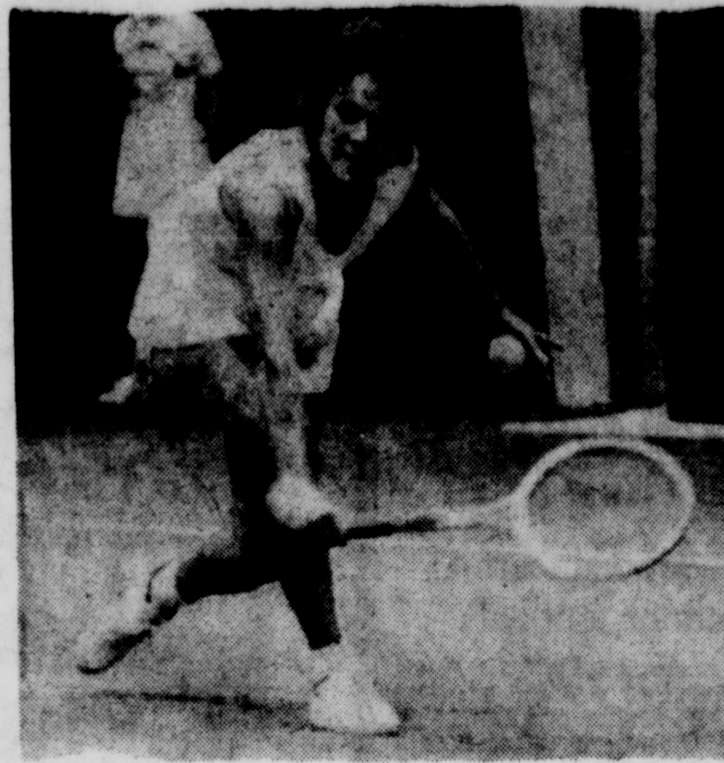

The two free throws by Texas' Lenox offset a late SMU basket. Both teams played the extra session without their high scorers—Texas' Larry Robinson, who scored 30 points, and SMU's Ruben Triplett, who had 20. Both fouled out.

Toledo hit the first basket against Ohio U. but never led again, although the Rockets caught up at 58-all on John Hogak's field goal with 3:17 left and forced the game into overtime. Tom Corde paced Ohio with 27 points while Mike Park had 22 for Toledo.

Morehead State, whose run-and-shoot offense was led by Howard Wallen's 18 points, pulled away from Western Kentucky in the final four minutes and wrapped it up when Wallen hit two free throws with 11 seconds left. Jerry Dunn scored 26 points for the losers.

The only good news for Western came when former star Jim McDaniels told The Louisville Courier-Journal he would repay the $66,318 his alma mater is being asked to return to the National Collegiate Athletic Association. The Hilltoppers finished third in last year's NCAA Tournament but had their third-place finish and gate receipts taken away when it was learned that McDaniels had signed a professional contract before the end of the season.

Elsewhere, Michigan trounced Wisconsin 93-70 behind Henry Wilmore's 25 points, John Ritter's 23 points and Steve Downing's 21 helped Indiana hold off Northwestern 72-67. Nick Weatherpoon's career-high 37 points sparked Illinois' 91-84 and Kentucky State, winner of the last two NAIA Tournaments, earned a berth again with an 86-67 win over Fisk behind Travis Grant's 30 points.

FIRST U. S. APPEARANCE — Evonne Goolagong of Australia, ranked No. 1 in ladies tennis in the world, makes her first U. S. appearance in the Maureen Connolly Brinker International Tournament in Dallas. Miss Goolagong defeated Wendy Gilchrist, 6-0, 1-6, 9-7, in the first round. (UPI)

Blues Split Zip Line

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Blues, in their longest season, have split their "Zip Line" and may yet be in a position to make another run on hockey's Stanley Cup.

Coach Al Arbour, desperate for scoring, Tuesday night again separated three hard-fighting National Hockey League youngsters and managed to come off with a second victory in three games.

"We had to do something to get better balance," declared Arbour, whose charges whistled past the hapless Los Angeles Kings 4-2 behind Jack Eggers' two goals in the jammed NHL West.

The goals were the third and fourth in two games for the 23-year-old Eggers, whose line-mates since October had been 24-year-old Garry Unger and 21-year-old Mike Murphy.

Teamed with the veteran Frank St. Marseille at center and Gary Sabourin on right wing, Eggers drilled a St. Marseille pass into the net at 2:30 of the opening period and added a goal for good measure at 8:09 of the second.

"Teams were doing too much to stop the Unger-Eggers-Murphy line," said Arbour, "and we had too little else to offer."

"I decided that since both Unger and Eggers like to shoot from the slot, we might be getting better production if they were on different lines."

Unger, with Phil Roberto on left wing in place of Eggers, scored on an unassisted slap shot at 11:26 of the opening period.

And Sabourin, getting assists from Billy Plager and Eggers, capped a three-goal St. Louis first stanza by bouncing a shot past Los Angeles netminder Gary Edwards at 12:16.

Renewal Clause Invoked

Cards Still Four Shy

(By The Associated Press)

The St. Louis Cardinals dropped the other shoe in contract negotiations with their holdouts Tuesday but it missed two of the four problem players.

The Cards invoked the seldom-used baseball law which allows clubs to order holdouts to report to training camp no later than March 10 under the renewal clause in their contracts.

Hit with the ruling were pitcher Jerry Reuss and catcher Ted Simmons. But the Cards were not able to contact their other two dissatisfied players—first baseman Bob Burda and third baseman Joe Torre.

Torre, the National League's batting champion and Most Valuable Player, will be the toughest autograph for Cardinal owner Gussie Busch, in camp or out. He wants $150,000—several thousand more than Busch is ready to spend.

Two other holdouts ended Tuesday when pitcher Carl Morton signed with the Montreal Expos and outfielder Merv Rettenmund agreed to terms with the Baltimore Orioles. Morton received a token raise while Rettenmund got a bigger jump, probably into the $40,000 class.

In exhibition games, the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates bombed Boston 13-1, the New York Mets jolted Detroit 9-3, the New York Yankees outslugged the Texas Rangers 14-9 and Minnesota downed the Chicago White Sox 9-6.

The Pirates got four-hit pitching from Bob Moose, Bob Veale and Bruce Kison and bunched five runs in the fifth inning and six more in the ninth to rip the Red Sox.

The Yankees collected eight hits including doubles by Ron Swoboda and George Pena for an eight-run seventh inning to beat Texas. Pena had homered earlier and Don Mincher connected for the Rangers.

Charlie Manuel drove in three runs with a homer and a single, rallying the Twins past the White Sox. Doubles by Wayne Garrett and Ted Martinez and a triple by Tim Foli keyed a six-run sixth inning explosion that led the Mets over the Tigers. All three are candidates for third base for the Mets, replacing Jim Fregosi, who is sidelined for a month with a broken thumb.

Big A Strike Hits Third Day

NEW YORK (UPI)—Aqueduct Race Track was shut down by striking parimutuel clerks for the third consecutive day today at a "saving" of $5,412 for the New York Racing Association and a loss of about $1-million to New York State.

The cancellation of racing for the third straight day became official late Tuesday when Meyer Drucker of the New York State Mediation Service announced no progress between the Independent Association of Mutual Employees and the NYRA. The strike began at 8:30 a.m. Monday after negotiations collapsed late Sunday.

The State Legislature is expected to attempt a compromise in the strike in the near future because of its tremendous financial loss. The state is estimated to lose approximately $325,000 in tax revenue every day the track is dark. The issue which caused the strike was the laying off of 44 pari-mutuel clerks who work for $41 a day—a three-day total of $5,412 if they were not on strike.

"I met long enough with both parties to hear their positions," said Drucker. "I would say they are still as far apart as the day they stopped talking to each other."

The NYRA insists that it must reduce its pari-mutuel clerk staff by between 75 and 31 employees because of declining attendance and handle at the track compared to last year. The NYRA blames the inroads of the Off Track Betting Corporation, which has been taking bets for the Bowie Race Track in Maryland while the Aqueduct is closed.

Trixie Schuba Is Ready For Final Competition

CALGARY, Canada (UPI)—Trixie Schuba begins the final competition of her skating career here today as determined to go out a champion as her two chief competitors are.

The stunning pair will compete against 14 other couples tonight in the free skating challenge, worth half the total points. They are excellent free-style skaters and are expected to skate off with an overwhelming victory for the fourth consecutive year.

In the men's singles today, Olympic gold medal Ondrej Nepela, the Czechoslovakian bookkeeper, who performs the unglamorous school figures with exceptional precision, also showed an improved free skating program at the Winter Olympics and skating observers speculate the progress in her mediocre free style may make her unbeatable.

"I know my toughest competitors are Karen and Janet but I'm going to try my best," she said. "They are very good free skaters but I've tried to improve my free style and it is much better than it was last year."

Miss Magnussen, the Olympic silver medal winner who placed third in last year's championships, is, like Olympic bronze medal winner Miss Lynn, a sparkling free skater, but the competent figures traced by the two national champions cannot match the excellence of Miss Schuba's performance in the compulsory, which count for half the total points.

A dazzling pairs performance by World Champions Irina Rodnina and Alexei Ulanov in the compulsory program Tuesday night gave the Russian skaters a virtually unbeatable lead in today's contest for the World Pairs crown.

The spectacular show by the Olympic gold medal winners whiz, is expected to maintain the firm lead he gained Tuesday when he performed the final two of the six compulsory figures.

Sergei Tcheteroukhin, the impressive Soviet skater who placed behind the world champion in the four compulsory figures Tuesday is aiming for second place over-all, while experts predict a tight battle for the bronze between East Germany's Jan Hoffman and John Misha Petkevich of Great Falls, Mont., and Harvard University.

In the short compulsory program Tuesday night of ice dancing—the only event in the global festival not included in the Winter Olympics—Ludmila Pakhomova and Alexandre Dorshkov, last year's champions, skated beautifully to top points in the starlight waltz and rumba.

Officials Conference Issues Paper

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The New York State Conference of Mayors and Municipal Officials has issued a position paper urging the legislature to suspend a state law that mandates the division of local police forces into three daily platoons of equal force.

Mayor William Valentine of Rome, conference president, said the organization wants to see first- and second-class cities given the local control to assign police forces at will during peak crime hours.

"Experience has shown that crime takes place in the evening hours or early hours of the morning to a greater intensity than during the middle hours of the day," the position paper stated.

Valentine said the 60 cities and 371 villages represented by the conference seek "greater police protection for an equal expenditure of public funds."

"Police duty charts should be the prerogative of each municipality, according to the relative need for its services and to promote public safety," the paper asserted.

State law presently requires that police forces in all first- and second-class cities, except New York City, must be divided into three platoons. That has the effect, the conference contends, of dividing a police force into platoons of equal numbers which work around the clock.

Changing the law, Valentine said, "should be beneficial to the policemen as well as the general public because it will provide them with greater support and safety in times of greatest incidence of criminal events."

Policemen Are Given Discharge

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) — Two former village policemen who pleaded guilty last month to reduced charges of official misconduct in connection with their use of village equipment for a private business were given a conditional discharge Tuesday.

The two, former Capt. Joseph Carosella and former Patrolman Steve Pavolitch, were sentenced before Madison County Court Judge Ross Patane, who is acting county judge in Broome County.

In 1970, the two were dismissed from the force, and last year 10-count indictments including felony charges of grand larceny were handed down against each of the men.

The indictment alleged that the two used village equipment and employees in their line-painting business, which did work on several shopping center parking lots, and that they had their private equipment repaired at village expense.

The two were allowed to plead guilty to the reduced misdemeanor charge of official misconduct Feb. 16.

Carosella is now drawing a pension for his 25 years on the force, police said.

Mugger Uses Dog On Victim

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Rip him!" a teen-age mugger commanded when his victim refused to turn over his cash on a Harlem street corner Tuesday.

The mugger's 90-pound Doberman pinscher lunged at Alexander Esposito, 20, with bared fangs as the dog's master and two accomplices — all 15 years old — calmly went through Esposito's pockets and came up with five $1 bills and pocket change.

When the trio finally called off the dog, Ripper, Esposito was writhing in a pool of blood.

Police officers saw the trio and the dog a few blocks away, cut them off with the squad car and got out, guns drawn.

The dog's master first yelled, "Rip him!" again, but then backed off, and commanded the dog to heel.

The three were charged with robbery, felonious assault and possession of a dangerous instrument — the dog.

Your Horoscope

Thursday, March 9

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is an unusually good day and evening to get your practical affairs on a firm foundation, so build a new structure for your everyday living. This can bring you the benefits you want to have in your life for a considerable period of time to come. Your most positive qualities are touched off well.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Take on some extra work that will give you more prestige and please your employer very much now. Get busy paying your bills, making collections that are long overdue. Show you are an excellent citizen.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Some new project appeals to you, but it first requires some extra study if you want to be successful with it. Out to see right sources of information early. Accept changes more readily and you can make your life more prosperous and easier.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Sit down with experts and talk over new ideas and then carry through with responsibilities you have that are entirely your own. Evening can be particularly fine with the one you love. A show of generosity is good.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Plan how to have better understanding with an associate where some mutual project is concerned. Get better results in the future. You attain a fine meeting of minds quickly. Take it easy tonight.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) If you sit down with co-workers and iron out points of difference, you find more headway can be made in the future. Do that shopping today for a new chapeau that makes you feel chipper. Have fun in p.m.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) If you get your important work done early, you can then go out for the entertainment you desire. Showing particular devotion to mate brings fine results, also. Stop being so belligerent.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are able to have things your way at home and do those things that will bring true harmony. Entertain there now, so be sociable. Show true tonight with zip as only you know how and make others truly happy, delighted.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Forget all that daydreaming and get right down to brass tacks with others and add to your funds. Make the right impression on an important person in business. Get the results you seek.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Use that good judgment you have to make personal matters more as you want them to be. Out to social events in p.m. that you really like. Deepen friendships and have more happiness in the future.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan this day for thrashing out practical affairs and getting them in better order. You have a good adviser who can be of great assistance now with ideas. Don't turn a deaf ear to those who can come to you for aid.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have an opportunity to spend some time with a good pal who has the know-how for getting ahead faster who will give you right ideas. The personal side of your life is as important as the business side friendship. IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those interesting young people who will be more concerned with achieving fame than merely making money, so slant the education along whatever line is the forte here, the greatest talent. Supervise the play early in life, choose friends carefully, then your youngster can truly make a name for himself, or herself. Permit to choose own religion for best results.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU! Carroll Righter's Individual Forecast for your sign for April is now ready. For your copy send your birthdate and $1 to Carroll Righter Forecast (The Daily Freeman), Box 629, Hollywood, Calif. 90028.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The atmosphere rests on the earth's surface with the weight equivalent to a layer of water 34 feet deep. Gravity holds the atmosphere's gases to the earth and the pressure, as well as density, decreases as height increases because the weight pressing upon any layer is always less than that pressing upon the layers below, The World Almanac says.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

IN A RUT: (Q.) I'm 16 and I've had enough of life. I'm not getting anywhere at all. The same old things every day. Believe me, it isn't fun.

Right now I feel so depressed. Sure, everybody gets depressed. But for me it hurts. I want to get out of this rut I'm in and start living life right.

But it just won't work out that way. When I'm 18 I want to split away from home. I want to start a new life. But how can I start a new one when I can't face the one I have?

It really gets to me. My family's no help. Sure, I love them, all. But my father is an alcoholic and my mother just won't understand. Right now there's no one but you to turn to. I'm very thankful for that.—Depressed Daughter in Connecticut.

(A.) The first step toward a new life is admitting to yourself that the life you have now is not the one you want. You do not want to live a life of the kind your mother and father are living.

Start now mapping out and working toward a new one. Here are some items you might include in it: A religion, seriously participated in; college; a boy friend you can love and who can love you, and with whom you can spend time actively in the sunshine away from crowds; service to others less fortunate than yourself.

MOLES: (Q.) I have a number of small dark moles on my face and body. None of them cause any discomfort, but some are noticeable. Would it be dangerous to have them removed?—Self-Conscious in Ohio.

(A.) A dermatologist can tell you if it is safe and advisable to remove the ones that bother you. Also ask him to look at all the moles. Some may need to be removed whether they show or not.

'The Rookies' Makes Debut

NEW YORK (AP) — Audiences old enough to remember those old movies about life at West Point must have had a fine, nostalgic time with ABC's 90-minute police program, "The Rookies," on Tuesday night. Almost 30 minutes passed before the first glimmering of plot appeared, but by then the viewers had received a pretty good idea of the ordeals and fun of a police academy. It was very much like fresh year in a 1938 movie except Darren McGavin was playing a tough, barking police officer instead of the football coach. Eventually the show got around to a crazy cripple running around grabbing girls and finally buying a gun. The mad sniper became the subject of predictable melodrama but not before there was a leisurely exploration of the hangups of some of the novice policemen—the sensitivity to racial remarks by a young black, an abhorrence of violence by a free soul who resented having to shave his beard to comply with regulations.

The parts of the stalwart rookie cops were played by four good-looking unknowns—and if the pilot sells as a series, you can bet they will have their troubles with wives, sweethearts and rigged charges of corruption. It was dull, imitative stuff.

Setting Trick Can Be Lost

If the good player is playing with a good partner there will be no way for him to go wrong. When South leads the three of hearts good player West will play the eight spot. This play will tell his partner that he has an even number of hearts. It won't require much thought on East's part to decide that this is showing four, so East will go right up with his ace, return the nine of trump and wait for the setting trick.

South's vulnerable four-spade bid would not meet with the approval of anyone who doesn't like to take any chances but it certainly meets with ours. South has nine top tricks. He has an excellent chance to pick up a tenth if his partner can produce any cards at all or if the defense slips.

The defense starts with three rounds of diamonds. South trumps the third lead and if he wants to put the maximum pressure on the defense he will lead his three of hearts immediately.

If East lets dummy hold just one heart trick it will be all over. South will run out the rest of the tricks for his contract. What sort of East player will grab that first heart? The sort of player who always takes his aces at the first opportunity will come out very well here.

How about a good player? If he is playing with a poor partner he is very likely to go wrong on the theory that South might well have jumped to four spades with just a seven card suit.

Inside North Vietnam

U.S. Bombers Continue Attacks

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. fighter-bombers attacked anti-aircraft defenses inside North Vietnam Tuesday for the seventh successive day, and more than a score of B52 bombers flew heavy raids south of the demilitarized zone today and Tuesday, the U.S. Command announced.

It said a flight of F4 Phantom bombers bombed an anti-aircraft artillery site about 25 miles north of the DMZ after the guns fired at a reconnaissance plane. A spokesman said the results were unknown, and there was no damage to the U.S. aircraft.

It was the 20th attack on anti-aircraft defenses in North Vietnam reported since last Wednesday.

The command also announced that a Navy A4 fighter returning from a mission either in Laos or South Vietnam crashed north of Da Nang. The pilot was rescued but was injured, a spokesman said. He reported that the cause of the crash was not known.

South of the DMZ, the U.S. Command reported, B52s flew nine missions against suspected North Vietnamese base camps around Khe Sanh and the A Shau Valley, a sector the big bombers have been hitting with regularity.

South Vietnamese forces reported killing 23 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong in three clashes south of Da Nang, in the central highlands near Ban Me Thuot and in the U Minh forest in the Mekong Delta.

In Phnom Penh, meanwhile, the Cambodian command said its troops have retaken the Mekong River island of Koh Sotin from Communist forces after 10 days of fighting and aerial bombardment.

The large island is 45 miles north of Phnom Penh and just south of the provincial capital of Kompong Cham.

Cross-Examination for Con-Man

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — The man with the pudgy-smooth face, mod red-striped bow tie over a light blue shirt, and a swatch of smooth dark hair slanting down across his forehead, faced his questioner calmly.

"I knew after several months," said Boyd Douglas, "that Philip Berrigan was highly looked upon by members of the Catholic inner circle, and to my knowledge anything he said would be carried out in due course."

He was talking about his months in prison with the radical priest in 1970 and about a circle of antiwar activists of the Roman Catholic Left, five of whom are charged with Father Berrigan of plotting to kidnap Presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and blow up Washington utility tunnels.

Douglas had just testified that in addition to talking about blowing up the steam-heat ducts, Berrigan had mentioned about putting an explosive device inside the computer system of the Pentagon.

The Pentagon project, however, "had been looked at and ruled out at that time" in the summer of 1970, Douglas said. Douglas, a former forger, impersonator, two-time convict, and con-man began his first day of cross-examination Tuesday in the federal court trial of the Harrisburg Seven.

Berrigan and the five other present or former clerics have as a codefendant a Muslim Pakistani scholar who has been teaching in the United States as a resident alien. All are charged additionally with conspiring to vandalize draft boards to publicize their cause.

Berrigan's jaw dropped when the government's star witness, Douglas, came out with the Pentagon sabotage accusation under questioning by defense attorney Ramsey Clark. Berrigan might have been startled at the boldness of the utterance, but he couldn't have been too surprised.

Gunfire Exchange in North Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — British troops exchanged gunfire with snipers in Belfast and Londonderry during the night, Army spokesmen said today.

The spokesmen said one soldier suffered a hand wound but troops reported they believed they shot two snipers in an exchange of fire in Londonderry.

Men of the King's Own Scottish Borders said they returned the fire of a sniper who shot at them twice during a patrol of the Springfield Road area of Belfast.

The troops said a car sped away from the exchange of fire with one of its three occupants slumped and apparently wounded.

In Belfast, the Irish Republican Army (IRA), itself an outlawed organization, said it was cracking down on what it called small-time hooligans.

A UPI newsmen, strolling through the Roman Catholic Andersonstown district shortly after midnight, stopped to watch a gang of sulen, long-haired youths sweeping broken glass and rubble from a street.

He asked one of them why they were doing it. Such sights are rare here. "They ordered it," said one and went on sweeping.

"They" in Northern Ireland parlance is the IRA. The local politically-oriented "official" IRA wing said it was fed up with gangs of what it called hooligans using civil disturbance and the breakdown of law and order as an excuse to start riots, hurling stones, bottles and sometimes homemade bombs at troops and police. Some, it said, were guilty of assault and burglary.

Rogers Defends Foreign Policy Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers went before a questioning Senate Foreign Relations committee today to defend the Nixon administration's foreign policy and the State Department's role in it.

Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., slated the open hearing, officially to deal with the State Department's new annual authorization bill and to receive Rogers' 621 page report on foreign-affairs accomplishments in 1971.

Fulbright and other senators, however, have been saying they think the executive branch is giving Congress too little say in foreign policy.

This and such items as President Nixon's Peking and Moscow summit trips—and whether presidential advisor Henry A. Kissinger is encroaching on the State Department's domain—loomed as likely committee topics.

Rogers hit on these issues as he presented his book-length report with a 10-point forecast of "more than ordinary progress" in foreign affairs in 1972 and spoke to newsmen Tuesday.

Rogers praised the Nixon foreign policy record as "extremely successful by all standards."

Asked about his reported absence from top level meetings with Chinese leaders during Nixon's Peking visit, Rogers denied he or the State Department was being bypassed.

"I didn't feel excluded at all," the Secretary of State said. "I am not dispirited."

Nixon's Busing Stand a Secret Until After Florida Primary

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's stand on school busing will remain a secret until after the Florida primary next Tuesday.

The White House announced Tuesday that Nixon will study the busing situation during a weekend stay at Camp David, Md., but will withhold his decision on the issue until after the Florida voting.

In addition to expressing their preference in the presidential race, Florida voters will also vote on a referendum calling for a constitutional amendment to ban busing.

Nixon has expressed his opposition to widespread busing of children to achieve racial integration, but hasn't selected from the various proposed solutions to the problem.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon doesn't want to influence the Florida primary vote, nor does he want it to influence his decision.

Sadat, Arab Leader Start Talks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Egyptian President Anwar Sadat flew to Saudi Arabia today, beginning another round of talks with Arab leaders in search of support for a new confrontation with Israel. But diplomatic sources in Cairo expect no immediate concrete results and say the Arabs will have to mark time until President Nixon visits Moscow in May.

Sadat will meet with five heads of state in the next two weeks, and Egyptian officials said he would have "important and urgent consultations whose purpose is to increase the potentiality of joint Arab action."

His schedule includes King Faisal today in Jidda; the ruler of Kuwait, Sultan Sabah, on Thursday; Col. Muammar Kadafi and President Hafez Assad of Syria in Cairo this weekend, and President Jaafar el Numeiri of the Sudan in Khartoum next week.

Yasir Arafat, chief of the Palestine guerrillas, is in Cairo and is expected to report to Sadat. Kadafi and Assad on the situation in South Lebanon following Israel's four-day operation in the guerrillas' stronghold there last month.

In Tel Aviv, the military command announced that Israeli troops killed two Arab guerrillas and captured a third
